Soviets Increase Arms for Egypt

Administration Aide Silent on U.S. Decision On Planes for Israelis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has sharply increased its shipments to Egypt of late, including amphibious troop-landing craft, according to Assistant Secretary of State Joseph J. Sisco.

The State Department's chief Middle East expert noted Sunday the offensive nature of the landing ships, but refused to pinpoint their use for any possible Egyptian crossing of the Suez Canal against Israeli positions.

Sisco, while repeating administration determination to prevent a shift of the Mideast military balance in favor of the Arab states, refused again to say whether a decision has been made to sell additional war planes to Israel.

"Support Security"

However, he went on, "The President has made it very clear that we intend to support the security of Israel and I think that you can take that at face value."

Sisco spoke on the NBC interview program "Meet the Press."

Sisco's cautious, if ambiguous, statement on the plane sale came as it was learned the administration has agreed to replace F4 Phantom fighter-bombers Israel has lost recently to Arab anti-aircraft guns and missiles.

Although the Defense and State departments and the White House made their usual "neither confirm nor deny" statements Sunday, government sources said Israel will get the Phantoms under a flexible program aimed at offsetting increased Soviet involvement in the Mideast.

Future Moves

It was indicated Israel has gotten no U.S. commitment to a specific number of the powerful jets, but at the same time there were signs the supply of Phantoms will depend in part on future Soviet moves.

This could mean that increased installations of Soviet-built SAM-2 and the more advanced SAM-3 missile sites in Egypt and the use of Russian-piloted fighters along the Suez battle lines might result in more Phantoms going to Israel.

The increased effectiveness lately of the Egyptian air defenses—three Israeli Phantoms have been lost to improved, radar-directed SAM-2 missiles this month—also will be dealt with through U.S. aid.

It is understood American electronic equipment combat-proved in Vietnam and capable of jamming the SAM radars and radio devices is being shipped to Israel.

Similar Developments

Newsweek magazine in reporting similar developments Sunday added it had learned the first shipment of U.S. planes to Israel will include eight Phantoms.

The magazine said Israel had been assured the United States would send two Phantoms a month for an indefinite period, starting in August.

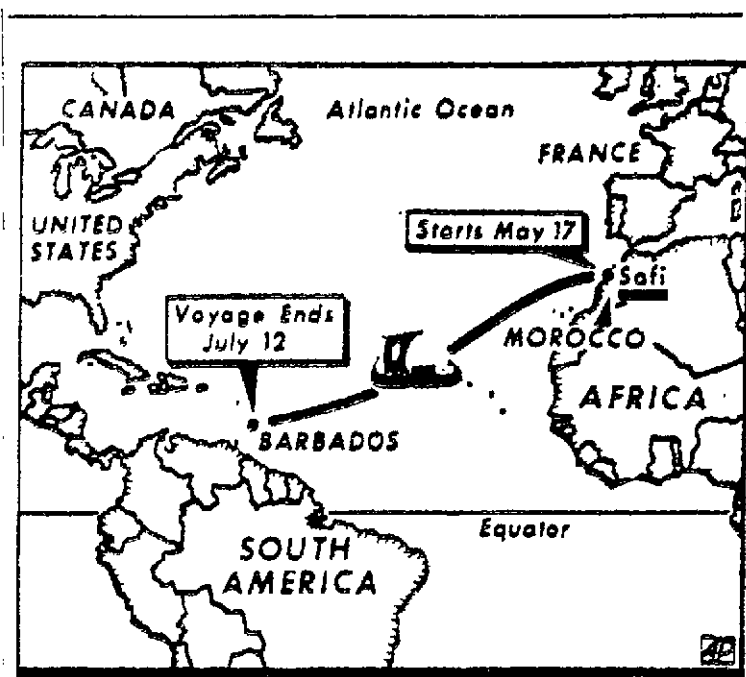

Sisco, when asked specifically about the Newsweek report, came up with the familiar response: "I can neither confirm nor deny the Newsweek report." adding, "I am not going to get into details about what we are doing, or may have done, for Israel." He added there are no plans "for involvement of American forces" in the Mideast.

Ra II Arrives

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) — After a two-month transatlantic crossing that he says proves the Egyptians could have discovered America 4,000 years ago, Thor Heyerdahl and his seven international crewmen planned to haul their waterlogged papyrus boat Ra II out of Bridgetown's harbor today prior to shipping it back to Europe.

The 55-year-old Norwegian explorer and his crew spent their first night ashore Sunday after completing their 3,200-mile crossing that began May 17 in Safi, Morocco.

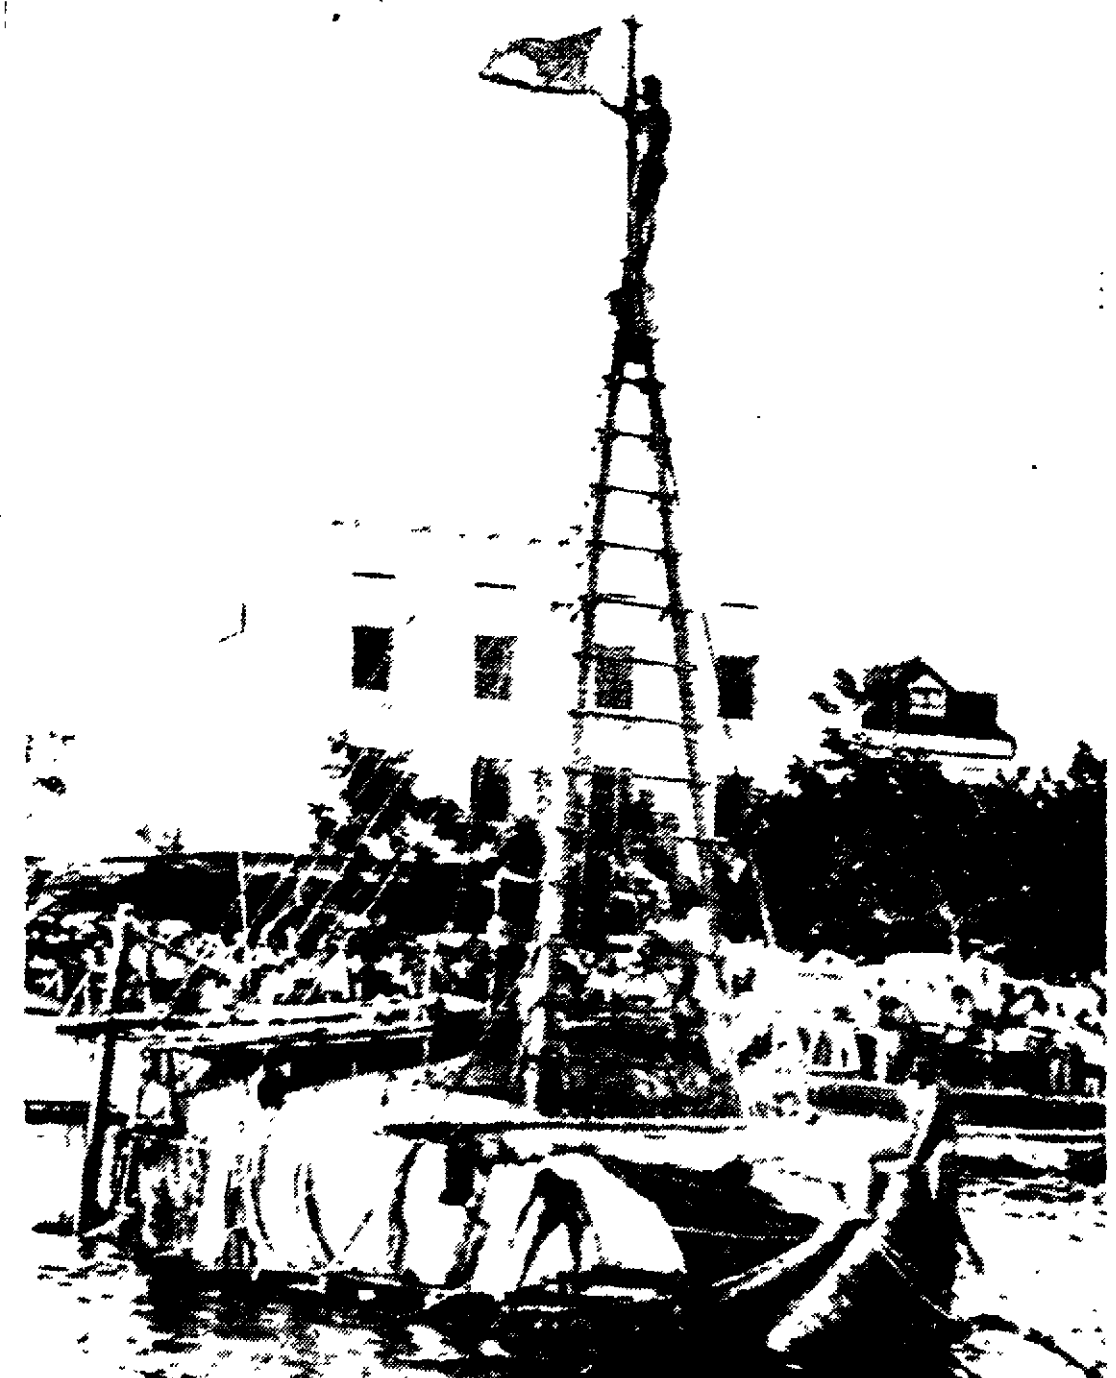

Claiming that the successful completion of his epic journey proved the ancient Egyptians could have crossed the Atlantic, Heyerdahl declared as he stepped ashore late Sunday afternoon: "This is a great, great, great moment. We have definitely proved that papyrus is seaworthy."

Above Water

Only the Ra's pointed prow and stern sections were above water, and the government tug Culpepper towed it the last eight miles into harbor. But officials said the Ra could have made Bridgetown unaided; she just needed assistance to complete the journey before dark.

"It's good to be back again," Heyerdahl called to wellwishers co. and they sailed under the dock in the capital of Barbados. "We are delighted to be here, especially when we came so close last year."

Chance for All-Out Updating Of Procedures Offered House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major House reform bill reached the floor today, giving critics of the present system a chance to clean away what they say are centuries-old cobwebs shrouding congressional procedures.

More than 100 changes in House rules and procedures are expected to be considered before voting begins, probably Wednesday.

One of the proposals, backed by the Democratic leadership, takes away the cloak of secrecy from votes on amendments.

The reform bill sent to the floor by the House Rules Committee makes modest changes in a limited area. It is the amendments being offered that present the reformers their best chance of a thorough house-cleaning.

Computer Services

Key provisions of the committee bill permit televised committee hearings, expand sources of congressional information and open the way for using computer services in Congress.

A bipartisan group of reformers has put together a 10-amendment package designed to end secrecy in voting and committee procedures, provide more time and information for debate and streamline House operations.

They key provision permits record votes on amendments. Now, in a custom dating back to colonial times, members are counted as they vote but not identified.

Higher Attendance

Adoption of the amendment could have a far-reaching effect on House procedures. For one thing, it would produce much higher floor attendance when bills are being considered.

Now, on many occasions, millions of dollars are appropriated and major legislative decisions made with fewer than 100 of the 435 members participating in the anonymous votes.

Once the decisions are made the rest of the members troop over to answer the roll call on final passage.

The prospect of spending their afternoons on the House floor legislating dismays many members and a strong undercurrent of opposition to the amendment has built.

Sponsors Hopeful

However, House Democratic Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma and his party whip, Hale Boggs of Louisiana, have endorsed the proposal and, with a broad coalition of Republicans and Democrats pushing it, sponsors are hopeful of approval.

The reformers' major worry is that opponents, taking advantage of the anonymous voting procedure, will try to load the bill with so many amendments the leadership will reject it.

For this reason reform leaders plan to oppose many of the amendments, including any touching on the seniority system, long their prime target.

Huntley in Review

Nixon 'Frightening'

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC television newscaster Chet Huntley, reminiscing in a Life magazine interview, says that of the Presidents he was around, he liked Lyndon B. Johnson best.

"He was kind to me," he said. "As insufferable as he could be, he was a gracious and funny man at ease. I never tried to argue with him. I just kept filling his glass with Scotch and we talked about breeding Herefords."

Huntley, who will retire Aug. 1 after 14 years with partner David Brinkley, also commented on President Nixon:

"I've been with Nixon socially: I've traveled with him in his private plane; I've seen him under many conditions. The shallowness of the man overwhelms me: the fact that he is President frightens me."

Of the vice president, Huntley said: "Spiro is appealing to the most base of elements." The magazine interview, says that new, he added "For God's sake...I resent being lumped in with his Eastern Establishment effete intellectuals."

He also offered these views: "Covering the astronauts was an exercise in boredom. The networks all got trapped. Most astronauts are dull as hell, nice guys, mechanics. The only ones who had a mind of their own didn't last long."

"It deeply concerns me that 55 per cent of the American people are getting most of their news from TV. These are people who, for the most part, are being confronted with news for the first time. And these are the people who form the Agnew clique."

Agnew Pessimistic on Peace Talks

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew says there is little hope President Nixon's new ambassador to the Paris peace talks will be successful as long as Hanoi demands nothing short of "the flat abandonment of South Vietnam."

While pessimistic about Ambassador David K. E. Bruce's immediate chances when he takes over as chief U.S. negotiator at the talks next month, the vice president, in an interview with the Associated Press, forecast an eventual settlement from the conference.

That will come, Agnew said, when the North Vietnamese "find that there is no advantage to them in continuing the struggle," and accept reasonable terms at the peace table.

In an interview aboard Air

Force Two, a jet transport without windows in its passenger compartment, Agnew talked of the office he holds, the administration he serves, and "the Fulbright claques in the Senate."

Agnew used the designation for Senate Republicans as well as Democratic critics of Nixon policy, particularly the U.S. attack into Cambodia.

Point of Comfort

"They have been harmful because obviously it is a point of great comfort to the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong to find that there are people in high elective offices who question the efficacy of the American presence in Southeast Asia," he said.

Here is a portion of the interview:

Q. Since that incursion, the scope of the fighting seems to have spread through most of Cambodia. Can you foresee a situation in which more and more U.S. troops could be pulled out, yet the scope of the fighting could spread and continue in Indochina?

A. I don't think that statement that since the Cambodian incursion the war has spread is accurate. The war spread immediately before the Cambodian incursion because of the belligerent action of the North Vietnamese in attempting to seal off a corridor to the sea, subsequent to Sihanouk's leaving the country and a new government coming into control.

North Vietnamese Troops

And I think that when you look at the Cambodian situation you must never forget that there'd be no war in Cambodia had there not been 40,000 North Vietnamese troops illegally in that country utilizing the sanctuaries as a base from which they could launch attacks on South Vietnamese and American soldiers in South Vietnam.

Q. Is it politically feasible, possible, at this point, to reverse course if necessary, and send more Americans into Vietnam?

A. Not only is it politically unfeasible, but it is directly contrary to the President's announced policy of withdrawing troops from Vietnam, a policy which he has successfully been carrying out and in which he has met every commitment that he has made thus far.

Q. If for some reason the President should decide it was necessary in effect to re-escalate, given the current state of the country, can we do that?

Unlimited Possibilities

A. You can't face that kind of contingency because the possibilities, the shades of crisis, are unlimited. You can run all the

All of Wisconsin River Fish-Eating Ban Extended

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Mercury levels in the Wisconsin River led the State Department of Natural Resources recently to extend its warning against overeating fish pulled from almost its entire length.
People should eat no more than one meal a week of Wisconsin River fish caught in the 350-mile stretch between Rhinelander and the Mississippi River, warned Lester P. Voigt, state secretary of natural resources.
Voigt said that studies conducted in the two months since the mercury levels were found above the danger point for humans in a 35-mile stretch below the Port Edwards Wyanotte Chemical Company plant indicate that there are dangerous levels in all areas of the stream in the 350-mile section. Studies have shown that levels at the mouth of the Fox River are also nearing the danger point, and the next studies by the state department will take place along the Fox, said Oliver P. Williams of the department staff.
Fox River
Fish samples taken from the mouth of the Fox have shown mercury concentration levels ranging from .08 and .48 parts of mercury per million. The Federal Food and Drug Administration has set the human consumption danger level at .50 parts per million in fish sold commercially.
Mercury levels found throughout that 350-mile range of Wisconsin River varied between .10 to 3.0 parts per million, said Williams.
The amount of mercury lost by the plant has dropped from a pound a day to less than the equivalent of a human thumb-nailed, Williams said.

The manner in which the mercury effluent is leaking into the cooling water has not been found, he said. It could be coming from a pinhole leak in the process, or through vaporization, he said.
The department, new to the problems and the studies, does not know where the mercury is coming from, said Williams. In Rhinelander and the Mississippi River, lander, fish sampled showed mercury levels of .10 to .50 parts per million — despite the fact that there is no industrial or municipal outflow into the water.
The best educated guess of the department is that past use of mercury compounds by paper and chemical companies accounts for at least some of the mercury pollution in the Wisconsin River, said Williams — but large cutbacks in such use occurred in 1957 and 1958, he said.
F. H. Schraufnagel of the department said that it was "pure conjecture," but that with signs warning fishermen of the hazard and the one-meal-per-week stipulation, Voigt announced.

Case of Youth Wearing U.S. Flag Overturned

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A superior court judge has ruled under the constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech that a youth was not desecrating the flag when he wore a jacket bearing an American flag marked with the words: "Give Peace a Chance."
Judge Tate J. Beal overturned an appeal Thursday the conviction of Charles Parker 17, of Maiden, N.C., who had been ordered to pay $15 court costs in state district court.
Parker had worn the jacket on April 9 at a meeting at the University of North Carolina.

Today in History

Today is Monday, July 13, the 194th day of 1970. There are 171 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1863, Civil War draft riots broke out in New York City. About 1,000 persons were killed in three days of disorders.
In 1787, the U.S. Congress passed the first act providing for the government of the Northwest Territory.
In 1793, the French revolutionaries in 1919, the first dirigible to cross the Atlantic, Britain's R-34, completed its round trip.
In 1959, the Soviet Union announced it had launched a white spitz dog into orbit and returned it safely to earth.
Ten years ago, Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts won the Democratic presidential nomination at the party's national convention in Los Angeles.
Five years ago, federal judge Thurgood Marshall was nominated to be solicitor general of the United States. He was to become the first Negro ever to hold the office.
One year ago, Russia launched an unmanned spaceship, Luna 15, toward the moon.

Sons of Pioneers Have Interesting History

BY JINGO

There's an interesting story behind that lively western group of singers and instrumental talents called The Sons of the Pioneers, coming to Outagamie County Fair with the Roy Rogers-Dale Evans Show.

Jingo

They'll be singing some of their (and our) all-time favorites — "Cool Water," "Tumbling Tumbleweeds," "Pecos Bill" — two shows a night beginning Thursday and ending Sunday at the grandstand at the Seymour fairgrounds.

This great popularity they have today didn't bloom all of a sudden — but almost, after years of separate sort of surviving. It all began, they say, in the summer of 1934.

Six Originals

They were six in that original group — five part-time actors and full-time surviving musicians sitting around a western set in a movie studio wondering what to do next in the way of work. The sixth member was a musical schoolboy by the name of Lloyd Perryman, who used to clean up, carry instruments and other odd jobs. He also could pick a mean guitar and sing very well, so it's no wonder he became a part of the group on many occasions.

But to get back to the beginning of the story, the original five actor-singers decided they collectively had something and besides, it was just as easy to starve in a group as singly. Each man then belonged to a different musical group, but worked off and on in western bit parts. They struck up a going friendship while on the various sets.

They began to work together — on harmony, comedy, the right musical chords for a western image. They picked their name when they discovered that each had a pioneer background with their forebears coming west in the days of the covered wagon. The Sons of the Pioneers was a natural.

They were ready — Leonard Slye, Bob Nolan, Tim Spencer, Hugh and Carl Farr and youngster Lloyd Perryman, who played with them sometimes.

Roy Rogers Evolves

Fame came rapidly with appearances in westerns as actors, singers and an emerging star. In 1937, Leonard Slye from the Pioneers became the handsome cowboy star known as Roy Rogers.

No longer the youngster, Lloyd Perryman stepped into the Pioneer group and today is the only one left of the originals, except Roy Rogers still on his own.

The Pioneers have played in more than 100 movies; they have sold more than 20 million record albums; they have appeared in rodeos and fairs too many times to count; they presented the first western concert in Carnegie Hall in 1951 and in 1968 were voted the best country-western vocal group by the Country Western Hall of Fame. World travelers in concert programs, the Pioneers have entertained servicemen in three wars.

Now Looks At Vietnam, U.S. Plans

BY TV SCOUT
9:30-10 Channels 11-9 — Now examines the problems of the Vietnam war in a program titled "Vietnam: Topic A." The segment deals with the three major elements of the government's plans for South Vietnam: Vietnamization, pacification and land reform. ABC News correspondent Ted Koppel is narrator and guide for this trip into Vietnam. The program reaches an interesting conclusion about whether the United States can give the Vietnam War back to the Vietnamese.

7-7:30 Channel 5 — Monday Theatre presents a pilot that didn't sell called "The Kowboys." (CQ). It's about four teenagers who meet in the Old West and have such fun and adventures. Oh boy! Playing the four are Boomer Castlemann, Michael Martin Murphy (CQ), Jamie Carr and Joy Bang.

6:30-7:30 Channels 11-9 — It takes a Thief is hampered by a script that is unrealistic with performances to match. It takes place in a ghost town where an aging prospector turns out to be an agent plotting to allow deadly radiation in the air. (R)

6:30-7:30 Channels 2-7 — It's father vs. son on this rerun of Gunsmoke. Chill Wills drops his usual mellow personality to take on the role of a huge, wealthy and hell-for-leather rancher who shoots a hole in the wrong hat. (R)

7:30-9:30 Channels 11-9 — Vince Edwards plays a psychologist named David Leopold in "Dial Hot Line" on the Monday Night Movie. Chelsea Brown, Kim Hunter and Land Bradbury are in this film which served as a pilot. (R)

7:30 - 8 Channels 2-7 — There's good news on The Lucy Show, which is the summer replacement for Here's Lucy. Anyway, the news is the presence of Vivian Vance who once again proves what a great foil she is for Lucille Ball. You'll see bits and pieces of past shows as Viv, visiting Lucy in the hospital, recalls past adventures. (R) ...

9-10 Channels 2-7 — Carol Burnett may be off for the summer, but Harvey Korman is still in the time slot, playing a foreign diplomat who is not above double-crossing the hero of The Wild, Wild West. (R)

Police & Fire Beat

Kathleen Unmuth, 18, 1829 N. Richmond St., told Appleton police Sunday evening that about 50 records, valued at over $100, were taken three weeks ago from her former apartment at 806 N. Meade St.

Dixie A. Johnston, 21, 1221 W. Commercial St., received a forehead bump Saturday night when the auto in which she was riding struck a power pole on Commercial Street, near Gillett Street. The car was driven by Melvin W. Marks, 27, 1624 W. Summer St. Appleton police said that Marks was eastbound on Commercial when he applied his brakes, skidded about 135 feet, and struck the power pole. Marks told authorities he saw a vehicle approaching on Gillett before the mishap.

Two persons received minor injuries Sunday evening in a line-of-traffic collision on Oneida Street, south of Foster Street. Appleton police said that autos driven by Richard L. Janssen, 18, route 2, Appleton, and Elizabeth A. Groves, 39, 2525 Brookdale Court, were northbound on Oneida when the Janssen car struck the Groves auto in the rear. Police said she was attempting to make a left turn onto Foster at the time of the accident.

A passenger in the Janssen auto, Randall S. Janssen, 14, 1007 E. Randall St., suffered a forehead bump. Mrs. Groves complained of a whiplash injury and was taken to Appleton Memorial Hospital by Gold Cross ambulance.

A 14-year-old Menasha girl sustained small abrasions to her right arm Saturday night after an accident at Locust Street and Kamps Avenue. Appleton police said autos driven by Bernice A. Wuyts, 1021 Augustine St., Kaukauna, and Janet H. Trader, 1752 Plank Road, Menasha, collided in the intersection. Nancy Garzik, 14, 937 Plank Road, was a passenger in the Trader car.

An automobile driven by Irene Hastreiter, 102 E. Franklin St., was extensively damaged by fire Sunday night in the 100 block of E. Franklin Street. Appleton fire fighters, who extinguished the fire, said they could not determine its cause. They were at the scene about 30 minutes.

KAUKAUNA — Peter Giordana, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Giordana, 2108 Welhouse Dr., was taken to Kaukauna Community Hospital by police for treatment of a cut above his eye sustained about 4:30 p.m. Friday when a wheel came off the bicycle he was riding, throwing him to the ground.

KAUKAUNA — The theft of a 3½-horsepower gas engine was reported from a construction site at Electa Quinney School sometime Thursday night or early Friday.

KAUKAUNA — Cars driven by Mrs. David Zwick, 6 Armstrong Court, and Paul Wolf, 218 W. Fifth St., were damaged about 1:55 p.m. Friday when they backed from parking stalls on Crooks Avenue and collided. No injuries resulted.

Damaged Discs May Press Spinal Nerves

George C. Thosteson, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a condition diagnosed as "narrowing of a disc" in the spine. I would appreciate any information — Mrs. D.M.
Your spine, as you know, as a column of bones or vertebrae. Between these vertebrae are discs, or cushions of fibrous tissue, which let the bones move easily and smoothly. Various things can happen to these discs. With passage of time, they can become thinner, or narrowed, with part of the disc bulging into the spinal canal. (Changes in the shape of the bones may be associated with this.) Anyway, the bulging part of the disc can put pressure on roots of the nerves, which radiate outward from the spinal canal, and produce pain. The pain may be in the back, or it may also can damage a disc, a fall involve the sciatic nerve which extends down the back of the legs — sciatica. The pain is commonly in the leg although the cause of the pain is in the spine. (Usually one leg is involved.) Injury or sudden compression also can damage a disc, a fall in sitting position, or jumping downward for some distance, so that abrupt pressure is exerted on the discs. A disc can be ruptured, or misshapen. While this is often referred to as a "slipped disc," it seems to me much better to do not bring improvement, then call it a damaged or ruptured surgery may be necessary. Surgery can't do anything to replace a damaged disc, but adjacent vertebrae may be fused by means of a bone graft or other measures taken to prevent the damaged disc from exerting (or permitting) pressure on the nerve roots. There is a tendency for the discomfort of disc damage to come and go, depending largely on the patient's activity. Thus it pays not to make up your mind in too much haste as to whether a form of treatment is doing these headaches (two or three times a month and they last 24 hours). Are these an indication and progressive disc pain that of diabetes?—Mrs. C. R. I see no connection with diabetes. The description sounds more like migraine headache. Some who suffer with that become nauseated and can't take pills or keep them down. For them the use of medication in suppository form by rectum often is the answer. Might I suggest it to your doctor.

The Ailing House Sand Metal Before Painting

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN
Q: Not very long after having painted our metal shower stall it began to peel. Is there any paint I could put on which will stay on? — Lenasha, Wis.
A: Use an epoxy enamel. Before putting it on, sand down any doubtful areas and patch up bare metal spots with metal primer. Be meticulously careful to scrub off every trace of soap film and sand down any gloss on the recent finish.

Q: I would like to build a veranda this summer but I need plans, or at least some sketches. I've tried at two lumber yards and our local library but nothing is available. Can you help? — Brampm, Ont.

A: Write: Dept. of Public Information, Popular Mechanics, 575 Lexington Ave., New York City 10022; Meredith Publishing Co., Des Moines, Iowa. If they can't supply plans, they can at least give you a push in the right direction. If you can photograph a veranda which appeals to you, for a small fee you might persuade a good builder to make you a pretty good sketch and a list of materials.

Railroads Get Blame for 926 Forest Fires

MADISON (AP) — Railroads aren't keeping their spaghetti rights of way clean and engine equipment working properly—and that is causing forest fires, the Department of Natural Resources said Sunday. According to an annual report, there were 1,716 forest fires in Wisconsin last year and 926 of them were caused by railroad fires.

Of the major railroads operating in Wisconsin, the report says, the Milwaukee Road had 379 fires, the North Western with 377, and the Soo Line 124.

But—the report said that the 16 fires singled out as the worst in the state—one of the lowest figures in years. The department estimated the loss at $24.1 million compared with 2,363 fires that burned over 18,920 acres and did $316,000 damage in 1968. Columbia and Wood Counties were the hardest hit—each having more than 300 fires burned over much of its grassland. The Bureau of Fire Control reported said it cost $23,298 to fight fires—also a low figure. It said the long winter—which kept things wet longer—helped cut damage.

A Chair Is a Chair—Or Is It?

Webster describes a chair as "a seat usually with a back for one person."

Remember when it was easy to recognize a chair. You walked into a room, someone's living room or dining room, a doctor's waiting room or a restaurant and you knew right away where you were expected to sit.

But all of that is changing. Today's chairs sometimes don't look at all like the mental picture we can conjure up when someone says "chair."

And have you ever watched someone as they eye one of the new bean bag chairs? First, they stand there just looking at it and wondering if it's someone's idea of a joke. Then, when they decide it's for real, they are expected to sit. They try to decide how to get into it. Most people simply turn around, back up until they feel the material against their legs and drop. Once they are in, they talk about comfort, but ask "how do we get out?" Certainly they can't use any part of the chair as support because once they start easing out, the bean bag changes shape. It then becomes a matter of calling on muscles that have been out of practice to come to attention.

All kidding aside, many of the new chairs are comfortable. They are designed for people and their beautiful geometric lines are their greatest plus factor.

If this new modern should become your favorite, shopping is going to be fun for you. There are so many great designs to be found. If you are a traditionalist at heart, chances are you will succumb, buy one or more and find the eclectic is much to your liking.

As we watch this new furniture make its appearance in more and more furniture stores, begin to understand it and to like it, we are going to find that there's one more great style from which to choose.

So — if you do like the new, if you like the clean uncluttered look or if you simply want to add a new dimension in design to your home, look around. There's a whole new world of comfort awaiting you.

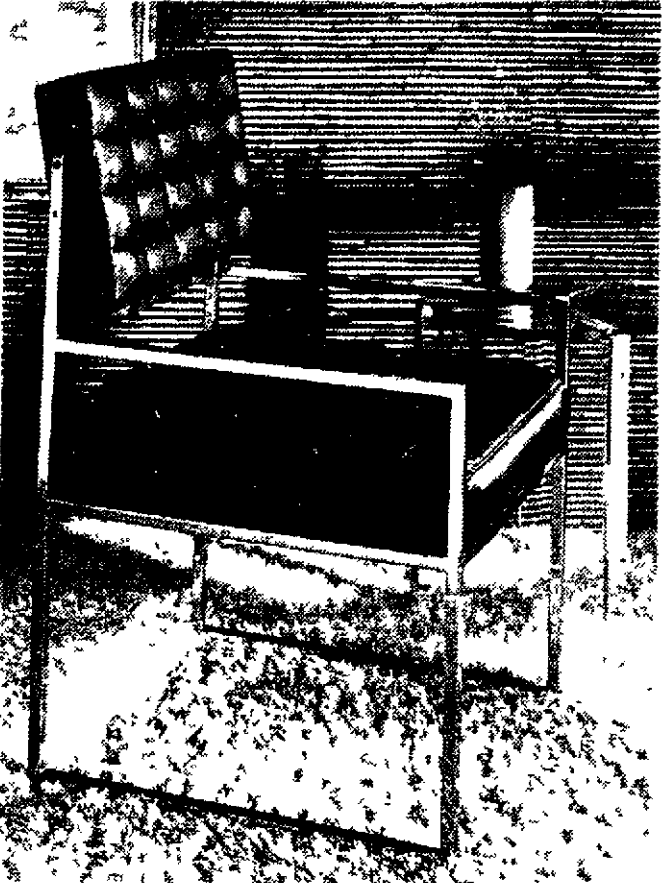

Delilah Chair with ottoman is part of the modern collection, "Exponent," from Drexel. They are polyurethane upholstery over metal tubing. Sassy, sophisticated pieces for those who like modern. At right, sculptural shape designed by Giuseppe Raimondo, one of the young creative Italians. Upholstered in shiny wet look vinyl, it shapes itself to the body. From Stendig, Inc.

BY CAROL HANSON
Post-Crescent Home Furnishings Editor

Framed For Sling comfort is the chair, above, from Directional designed by Jonathan Gnat. The black webbing, polished metal tubing and soft-edge cushions are important to the look, but the wide frame provides the design importance. The floor tree lamp has 12 metallic finish bare bulbs on a chrome cylinder. At left, a crisp refinement of the pull-up chair in metal and hide from Founders. Sleek straight lines are artfully contrasted with gentle curves of biscuit tufting.

Teenagers That talk for hours on end will find the bean bag chair from Founders irresistible. They're so comfortable, mom and dad will be standing in line for their turn. They are available in an array of colorful wet looks and dry vinyls. Telephone stand and table are molded plastic. At left, the sculptured look is evident in this far-out chaise covered in a soft furry fabric. Foam-upholstered wood structure suggests stretch-out comfort. From Selig Manufacturing Co.

Moth Days Ahead

Many people feel the safest closet is a sealed closet — meaning one that will remain unopened for the whole summer. This will, at least, keep moth preventives from dissipating each time a door is opened. The French swear by tobacco as a deterrent to moths. Families that were forced to move out of their lavish homes in wartime Paris sprinkled crumbled cigar tobacco under furniture slipcovers and put saucers of pipe tobacco in clothes closets.

Mentioning Her Name Wasn't Necessary

BY ANN LANDERS
 DEAR ANN LANDERS, how cruel can the news media get? A few days ago I read on the radio that a woman who lives in London — and they mentioned her by name — failed her driver's license test for the 39th time. The poor thing had been trying for 11 years to pass and now she is giving up. She invested over $700 on driving lessons, tutors and test fees which are required in England before one can take the examinations.

Landers

Can you imagine that woman's shame — after having failed so many times? And then to have it publicized all over the world must have destroyed her. To my way of thinking it is the most heartless thing I ever heard of. Why would they do it? — Sorry For Her Dear Sorry: Everyone

just as well had they not mentioned her name.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I feel compelled to write in reference to "Hung Up" — the woman who didn't know whether or not to marry a man who hated her young daughter by a previous marriage. The poor kid happened to bear a striking resemblance to his ex-wife whom he despised.

I married for the second time seven years ago. My daughter was nine at the time. She was an image of her father, whom my husband loathed. I, too, thought love would conquer all. Here is the way it turned out.

My husband picks on her unmercifully. She hates him. The girl has turned from a smiling, pleasant person into a sullen, unhappy liar. I am constantly in the middle. Her stepfather never refers to her by name. It's always "your daughter."

The guilt I feel for bringing up this child in such a hostile environment is driving me crazy. If "Hung Up's" daughter is hiding in her room now, refusing to come out even for meals, I shudder to think of the future.

Unless the mother is willing to ditch the girl in a boarding school and then ship her off to Europe during summer vacations, she is in for a hell on earth. If she doesn't it will be hell for the girl. Either way the marriage is doomed. If the mother who wrote hasn't already made the trek to the altar I hope she changes her mind. — Too Late for Me, I Married Him

Dear Too Late: I received a surprising number of letters which read a great deal like yours. Most of the writers were women, but a few men had a similar story to tell about second wives who mistreated their children. How sad for all of them.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell folks that when they see a person with a black eye not to ask, "What happened?" Anybody with half a brain can see that somebody probably hung on a haymaker. And while you're at it, tell people that the jokes about shiners are not funny to the person who has one. I have had two in four weeks and I am sick of nose questions and stale wisecracks. Thank you. — Ducked Too Late

Dear Duckey: Two in four weeks? A person who has that much trouble with his eyes must also have a problem with his mouth. If tea isn't enough, count to forty.

New Miss Universe Makes Boyfriend Sad

BY TAD BARTIMUS

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The new Miss Universe, Marisol Malaret Contreras, says one of the judges who chose her to represent Puerto Rico in the international beauty contest later became her boyfriend and is now a sad man.

He realizes, she told interviewers Sunday, that he isn't going to see much of her for the next year.

"Truly, he is sad. But I'm thrilled, and I think it will be the most wonderful experience of my life," the jade-eyed beauty said.

Won't Predict Future

Garbed in a slinky navy velvet lounge dress, Marisol conducted her first news conference after five hours of sleep.

Refusing to disclose her beau's name, she said, "I enjoy his company and now that I'm Miss Universe I don't know what will happen between us. There sure won't be much time for dates."

Moments after the retiring Miss Universe, Gloria Diaz of the Philippines, placed the glittering crown on Marisol's auburn tresses Saturday night, the 20-year-old winner made two calls to her native Caribbean island.

One went to the mystery man, the other to her elderly aunt and crippled brother, who were celebrating at her home.

Marisol, a secretary and part-time model, said both her parents are dead, and she is the sole support of the aunt who raised her and the 24-year-old brother, who has been crippled since birth.

Marisol's victory brought her $10,000 in cash, a $10,000 personal appearance contract, $6,500 worth of furs, a wardrobe for a year, hairpieces, hosiery, luggage and cosmetics.

But Marisol said in her Spanish accented English:

"No that I have won, it isn't the money that's important to me—it's the experience to come.

"Just being around all those girls from other places and different backgrounds has taught me a little about how people everywhere are basically the same.

"It was a beautiful feeling, and it showed me there is a real love power among human beings.

"So this year I want to give that love power to everybody I meet—just throw it around all over the world."

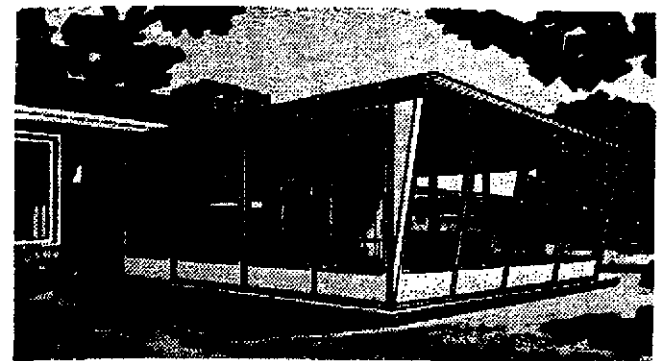

Marisol defeated 63 other contestants. Miss U.S.A., Debbie Shelton of Norfolk, Va., was first runnerup.

Cake Contest Whets Appetites

Where Have All the flowers gone? On Thursday at Madison Junior High playground, they could be found on cakes pretty enough to make little girls like Carla Penny smile. To tickle a boy's fancy, there was the sugar and spice concoction at right looking as if it had taken a crash landing thanks to "nibblers." Among those who couldn't resist was Mike Tyvol.

One day, cake; the next day, ice cream.

That's heaven and that's the way Appleton Recreation Department officials planned it last week, when they scheduled a cake contest to precede one of the high points of the season, the annual ice cream social.

Donning aprons and thinking caps, moms all over the city popped pans of batter into ovens. Out came little cakes and big to be sliced and spiced into a variety of shapes, frosted in a rainbow of colors and decorated with mouthwatering cardies.

Thursday afternoon, the cakes were transported to the playgrounds, where ribbons were awarded to outstanding entries. Then everyone got down to the business of celebrating with a good, old fashioned cake party.

VTE-12 Pacts Are Awarded

Bids Total $843,384 for Electrical Work, Equipment

Four contracts, totaling $843,384, were awarded to contractors for the electrical work, food service, science and cabinet equipment for the new Fox Valley Technical Institute, Saturday.

The awards were made at a special meeting of the Vocational, Technical and Adult Education District 12 (VTE-12) board, which preceded the groundbreaking ceremony for the $5 million facility.

The biggest contract was for electrical work, and it went to Pieper Electric Co., Milwaukee, for $776,853. Other contracts were awarded to Kitchenware Inc., of Wauwatosa, food service equipment for $15,244; Milwaukee Equipment Co., science equipment, $42,060, and Taylor Manufacturing, of Texas, cabinet equipment, $9,227.

The board also purchased an offset press from Printers Rule and Supply Co., Milwaukee, for $4,820, and a mobile reading and career information lab from R & R Dodge, Appleton, for the low bid of $13,685.

The latter is part of a pilot program in the district and is 100 per cent federally funded. It will be used fulltime in the VET-12 communities to assist adults with basic reading problems.

It also will be used as a career information center, stressing opportunities in the vocational and technical fields, and will be operational by fall.

In other business, all four officers of the board were re-elected. Harland Kirchner, Clintonville, is president; Donald Steinfert, Oshkosh, vice president; Darwin Smith, route 1, Menasha, treasurer, and Robert Schneider, Hortonville, secretary.

Gaylord Unbehaun, Superintendent of Brillian schools, was re-elected ex officio member, representing district superintendents.

Spice, Conradt Seek Re-election

Outagamie County Sheriff Calvin Spice and 3rd Dist. State Rep. Ervin Conradt today filed their nomination papers for re-election.

Spice, a Democrat from Kaukauna, is completing his third two-year term. He was elected in 1968 but had served two prior terms earlier in the decade.

Three Republicans have indicated an interest in the post, including one who has filed.

Conradt, a Republican from Route 2, Shiocton, has served a number of terms in the assembly. One other person has taken out nomination papers for that post.

The deadline for filing papers is 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Appleton Woman, Dog Hurt in Fall From Second-Story Window

A 24-year-old Appleton woman, who Sunday morning apparently fell, along with her dog, from a second-story window at her home, is in satisfactory condition today at Appleton Memorial Hospital.

Betty J. Korth, 821 N. Morrison St., sustained a forehead cut and broken right wrist when she apparently slipped from the window while attempting to leave the house about 3 a.m. and dropped to a service walk below. The animal received a broken leg.

She was taken to the hospital by the fire department rescue squad. No foul play was suspected in the incident, police said.

Quaker Dairy Corporation Founder Dies

Ben Cherkasky, 77, Innovated Carryout Sales for Dairies

Ben Cherkasky, founder and acting president of the Quaker Dairy Corporation, died Sunday at age 77.

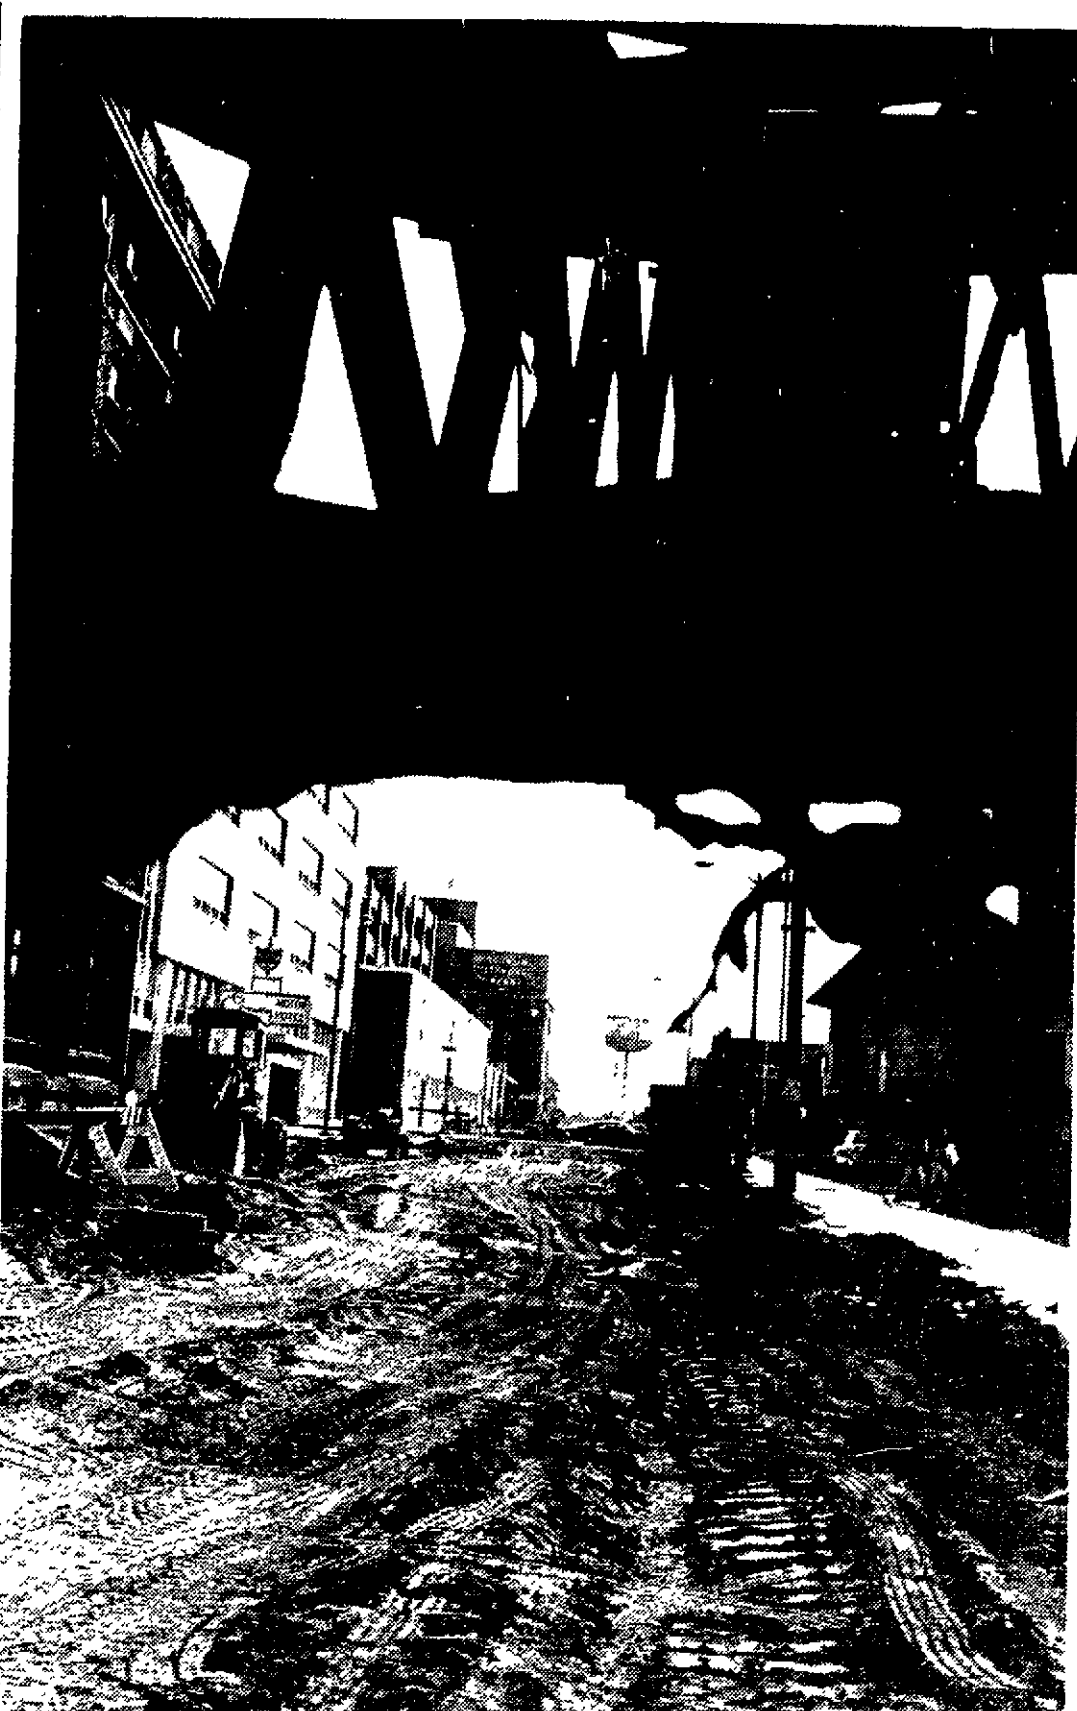

Cherkasky came to the United States from Russia in 1914 and served in the armed forces during World War I. After the war he worked as a bookkeeper for the Kennedy Dairy Company, Madison.

In 1926 he came to Appleton and bought the Ames Dairy, located at the present site of the Appleton Post Office. Deliveries from the dairy were made with two horses and two wagons. In 1933 he purchased a building on West Washington Street and founded the Appleton Pure Milk Company, later dissolved.

Cherkasky formed the Quaker Dairy Corporation in 1939 and bought out the Potts and Woods Dairy. Through court decisions, he innovated a cash and carry system for dairy products — instead of the home delivery system — and started a chain of dairy stores. Now the firm has 10 Quaker Dairy stores in Appleton, Neenah, Little Chute and Kaukauna.

In 1961 Cherkasky started a

COG, Northeastern Planners Favor Statewide Curbs on Pollution of Air

The state has promised fast and strict enforcement of its new air pollution control rules, but state and Fox Cities-based regional technicians admit it may be a more difficult kind of pollution to attack than water pollution.

"It's different kind of program; you can't identify the cause and effect," said Thomas Frangos, administrator of the State Department of Natural Resources' (DNR) environmental protection division. The division handles all state antipollution programs.

However, Frangos promised that a control program, which has a 1973 completion target date, was being initiated "right now." And enforcement will be strong, he added.

Arno Haering, director of regional planning for the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG), and Gerald Paul, chief hydrologist for the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission, endorsed the idea of state regulations. Both said that since winds play such a major role in air pollution, any regional program would have to be set up carefully.

Haering, who suggested it might be best to handle the problem mainly on a statewide basis, said the DNR possibly could initiate the same type of pollution orders program it did for water pollution. Frangos said the state is planning a program whereby communities and industries would have one year to report air pollution conditions and two years to correct them. The new regulations, he said, are aimed at bringing about conversion of industrial equipment and changes to new fuels.

Paul said he has talked with officials of the National Air Pollution Control Administration to substitute natural gas for coal and oil, if there is an interest in seeing that "there adequate natural gas supply is coverage of all nine counties available, he said.

He said that he felt it is since smoke and suspended solids know no boundaries. He in the near future so that when the time comes for programs, they can be initiated quickly. He said the regional planning commission's task probably should be to prepare a model county ordinance and give counties guidance.

"Good Standards" Paul said the state standards compete for development with are "good standards," and they

County Board Safety Building Site OK Sought

The proposed joint Outagamie County-Appleton safety building faces yet another hurdle Tuesday night when the County Board will be asked to approve construction of the building next to the courthouse.

While passage of the resolution would still leave the proposed joint venture a long way from final approval, it would put the city and county on common ground in the issue for the first time since early in negotiations.

Tuesday's meeting of the board starts at 6:30 p.m. and is the second night session of the summer for the County Board.

The safety building proposal, as it now stands, is considerably different from first plans for a joint structure. The present proposal calls for construction of "such a building deemed necessary to meet the immediate needs."

Council Endorsement Both that definition and the site, immediately east of the courthouse, have been endorsed by the Appleton City Council. If the county board passes the resolution, the next step would be to determine again the size of the building and what will be located in it.

A relatively light agenda, other than the safety building proposal, is on tap for supervisors.

The board will be asked to provide $100 for legal fees to join in a state suit to conduct a test case involving the new industrial revenue bonding act.

Questionable Legal Status The county has had an industrial development commission in existence for a number of years but it has never functioned because of the questionable legal status of industrial revenue bonds.

In other action, the board will be asked to pledge future state highway aids as its share of

Schedule Set For Completing Assessments

Schwarzbauer Says His Office Is Four Months Behind

The Appleton Board of Review today set Assessor George C. Schwarzbauer a tight schedule for completing his 1970 assessment rolls listing valuations of city property for tax purposes.

The board held its organizational meeting at City Hall and agreed to adjourn until Monday, Aug. 24, to begin a weeklong series of sessions to hear from property owners wishing to file objections to the assessed valuation placed on their property.

Schwarzbauer, who took office after a special election in April, said he hopes to meet the timetable, pointing out that his office is "basically four months behind" in preparing the rolls.

Schwarzbauer was elected to succeed the late John A. Pierre, who died in October last year, leaving the office vacant some six months.

Schwarzbauer said about 20 per cent of the rolls are completed now, and another 30 per cent are nearly complete.

His office will be open for taxpayers to inspect assessed valuation records on their properties the week before the state corporate income taxes board meeting. The office will be open the regular hours, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., each day, and in addition on Tuesday, Aug. 18, and Thursday, Aug. 20, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

The board will meet from 10 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 24, and each day through Friday that week from 10 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m.

Owners whose property has increased in assessed value by $100 or more are being notified by the assessor's office as the work on the rolls progresses.

Schwarzbauer said

Driver Runs Away After Striking Tree

Appleton police are searching for the driver of an apparently stolen car involved early Sunday in an accident.

Witnesses told police they saw an unidentified man flee through back yards in the 500 block of N. Drew Street just after the car he was driving struck a tree. The accident occurred just after midnight.

Authorities traced the car to Kenneth Kemps, 326 E. Harris St., who told them the auto was parked in his driveway earlier with the keys in the ignition

Wisconsin Judicial Director Joseph Prolzyk assured those in attendance at the meeting that such threats were not legal, and that his office would prosecute against such violations.

Dam Lifeline Will Protect Boaters in '71

Corp of Engineers Plans Safety Device Before Next Spring

MENASHA — A lifeline that will protect stray boats from going over the Menasha Dam will be up before the spring rains of 1971.

Ross Plaine, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers district engineer in Appleton, said plans haven't been drawn for the cable setup that would extend along the south half of the Racine Street bridge, but that "we will have something in by next spring."

After plans are drawn, they will go to the State Highway Commission for approval, he said.

The city approved in late June the Corps proposal for a lifeline rising eight to ten feet above water level and running along the east side of the Racine Street bridge from the south side of the river up to the drawbridge section of the bridge.

Safety Network

A proposal to keep boats from drifting through the drawbridge section towards the dam has not been made, although Plaine said today that something — probably buoys — would be placed there to complete the dam protective network.

Nylon ropes will be hung from the bridge cable, at intervals, so that boaters could grab onto it if they were drifting in a strong current towards the dam. It would also serve as a warning signal to boaters approaching the dam.

The drawbridge side of the bridge will probably be protected by a series of buoys that would serve mainly as a warning to approaching boaters.

June 6 Mishap

The dam-protection proposals grew out of a June 6 incident in which a boat carrying 10 persons was swept over the Menasha dam after the owner misread a buoy and sheared a pin while approaching the dam.

Two of the 10 persons were swept over the dam also, but were saved by citizens who were attracted by crowds watching the incident.

Similar incidents have happened in the past, which had earlier prompted the Corps to erect a large warning sign at the dam to alert boaters to the dangers of the dam.

County King Grandparents From Neenah

NEENAH — Mr. and Mrs. Herman Meyer, 169 Gruenwald Ave., have been named King and Queen Grandparents of Winnebago County.

The couple was selected from 14 entrants in the contest sponsored by the Wisconsin County Boards Association and the state Division of Aging.

The Meyers were submitted by their 13-year-old granddaughter Gaella Bucholtz. They will compete with grandparents selected in other Wisconsin counties for the state title.

Restore Dolls

They have restored dolls and given them to institutionalized children for over 35 years. Mrs. Meyer said they also give the dolls to elderly persons in homes.

The Meyers will receive a certificate of recognition signed by Gov. Warren Knowles. The three-man selection committee was headed by Harry I. Miller, 1232 Bay Shore Drive, Oshkosh.

Coronation of the king grandfather and queen grandmother will be July 26 in Milwaukee. Finalists in three categories will receive $50 each to cover expenses.

Emergency Board Working Toward Rail Settlement

WASHINGTON, AP — With strikers back on the job and rail service returned to normal, a three-man emergency board will attempt to settle a 12-year-old dispute over the use of firemen on diesel locomotives.

The board, named by President Nixon under provisions of the Railway Labor Act, will begin taking testimony in Washington Thursday.

At the request of management, Nixon stepped in to end a brief walkout by 18,000 members of the United Transportation Union who struck the Baltimore & Ohio, Southern Pacific and Louisville & Nashville railroads Tuesday.

Fred M. Livingston, a New York lawyer, is chairman of the emergency board. Members are Willoughby Abner, a professional mediator and former United Auto Workers official from Chicago, and James C. Vadekin, a professor of economic and industrial relations at the University of Miami, Coral Gables, Fla.

Menasha Seeks Dump Site

MENASHA — The city is still looking for a new solid waste dump, but they "haven't found anything yet," according to Public Works Director Bruno Haas.

Haas said he hoped to be "getting into contact" with officials from neighboring communities soon to continue the search for a joint dump site for several communities. But he couldn't say when.

The city has been told by the state Department of Natural Resources that it must find a new landfill dump site to replace its Badger Quarry site, which does not meet state standards that went into effect July 1.

July 1 Deadline But although that July 1 deadline for complying with state standards has passed, and the city is still looking for a new dump site, they are not feeling strong pressure from the state at this time.

"If nothing is done soon, we'll certainly be getting more pressure from the state," Haas admitted, however.

The state has given the city an informal extension of the July 1 deadline to give the city time to find a new site. They did not say how long the extension was, however, although Haas feels. "If we know which way we're going in 18 months, we'll be in good shape."

Although the search for a new site is still in its infancy, these trends are emerging: Joint Operation —The cost for operating a single-city dump would be "prohibitive," Haas said, and "practically speaking, a joint dump site for several area communities would 'definitely be the best thing to do.'"

A city the size of Menasha, he said, cannot operate on a volume large enough to warrant a single landfill operation, with the specialized equipment and machinery necessary for the operation.

Only Appleton, he believes, could possibly justify a municipal operation by itself.

Haas said he hopes to have another meeting soon with area officials to discuss a joint operation, although he admits it is a "slow process."

—Finding a landsite for the dump will be a difficult problem.

Commissioners to Boycott COG Report

NEENAH-MENASHA — The Fox Valley Council of Governments called a meeting for tonight and invited the mayors and aldermen of the Twin Cities and the two boards of the Neenah and Menasha townships. The sewerage commission was also invited, but will attend only in part and that part cannot represent the commission, according to its rules of operation.

Eugene Franchett, head of COG, said he would be giving a progress report to the people. "We will present the regional waste water system and its impact on the Neenah-Menasha area."

Sewerage Commission President Gilbert Krueger said he was going to have his regular Monday night meeting "as scheduled." He complained that COG hadn't taken the commission's meeting into consideration. "They didn't consult with us."

"I've heard the waste water study three times already," Krueger said of COG's program.

'More Important' Adam Haber, Menasha commissioner, will be at the plant with Krueger. "We have an agenda that is very important," he said, and listed union business and resolutions dealing with applications for federal funds. "I feel in all fairness that this is more important."

Commissioners Thomas Wintheiser and Donald Metz said they will be at the Menasha council chambers at 7:30 p.m. and not at the commission meeting. Commissioner Karl Forsgren was unavailable, but Metz said he would be at the council chambers.

Wintheiser and Metz said they knew of the regular commission meeting. "If nothing is going on and there is a poor turn out at the council chambers, we will all head over to the commission meeting," Metz said.

No Quorum If the three commissioners are absent, the commission will not have a quorum and will not be able to conduct any business.

Haber said the three commissioners could not be official representatives of the commission. He cited a resolution requiring unanimous approval before commissioners could attend outside meetings as official representatives.

"If they go, they go as private citizens, not as authorized representatives of the sewerage commission," Haber said. He said he felt non attendance at the regular meeting would be an abdication of responsibilities and duties.

'Political Thing' Franchett will bring the city fathers up to date on COG's regional waste water plan. The plan is technically complete. "We've done our part of it; now it is a political thing."

He said the plan must be approved by council members and be into the federal for approval by Sept. 30. If it isn't, there won't be federal funding for any waste water projects in the region.

"I think we can make it," he said of political approval. "I'm confident that the municipalities will see the benefits of a regional system and will proceed with it."

Metro District There are five possible regional treatment plans, but only two are favored. One would put a single, large plant in Kaukauna to serve the whole metro district; the other would keep existing plants and build another at the north end of Little Lake Butte des Morts. Any regional plan would be centrally administered.

Of the five alternatives, only the last includes expansion of the Neenah-Menasha plant.

The sewerage commission is ready to ask consulting engineers Consoer & Townsend to draw working plans for a $15.5 million plant expansion that would serve treatment needs until 1985 and enable the commission to comply with state anti-pollution abatement orders.

Haber said that COG "had only interfered" with the commission's development of treatment solutions.

Rural Chilton Student Studying in Austria

CHARLESBURG — Miss Sue Klapperich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Klapperich, route 2, Chilton, is attending the University of Salzburg in Austria for six weeks.

During her stay in Austria she will be living with a host family, obtaining first-hand information on the language and customs of the Austrian people.

Salzburg is a city of about 200,000 people, nestled among the Austrian Alps. Each year the famous Salzburg Music Festival is held in honor of the Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, with a program of recitals and operas. Salzburg was the setting for the movie "The Sound of Music".

Weekend Tours

In addition to viewing the scenery of Austria, she will participate in various weekend tours, taking her to Vienna, Switzerland, West Germany, Italy and also behind the Iron Curtain to Czechoslovakia and East Germany.

In Oberammergau, Germany, she will attend the Passion Play, presented once in every ten years.

The last two weeks of her excursion will be spent touring northern Europe, visiting the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg and France.

Miss Klapperich will return home Sept. 1 to begin her junior year at Marion College, Fond du Lac, where she is majoring in medical technology.

Miss Klapperich is a 1968 graduate of New Holstein High School. She was given the opportunity to apply for the Summer Study abroad through the Cultural Studies Academy of Columbia, Mo., which accepts students with above average grades in foreign language.

Challenges of Today Same As Years Ago

War Faced Laird's Generation, Too, He Tells His Classmates

MARSHFIELD (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird touched on a time of military building and another of defense cutbacks in talks during a weekend visit to his home state.

At the 30th reunion of his graduating class — Marshfield High School, 1940—he said they graduated at a time when young people were faced with serious challenges as Hitler was on the march in Europe.

"Young people today are in the same boat," he said, before quickly dropping the subject.

"We are here to have some fun," he told the 165 class members and their spouses, "and I deal with serious problems all the time."

He mentioned that he and his wife had promised to attend the Saturday reunion and would try to be there for the 35th gathering.

He noted that one of his assistants —Robert Froehke— is from the same class, adding that Froehke is the man who helps him the most.

On his way to the reunion, the former Wisconsin 7th District congressman spoke to troops being given training at Camp McCoy.

"I express to you the importance of the reserve and National Guard programs and also the challenges and responsibilities you will assume in the future," he told the group of officers.

"As our military force structure is being reduced, it will be necessary for us to rely more heavily on the National Guard and reserve forces," he said.

He said guard programs were going to be improved and asked the officers to help with the programs and motivation as the Defense Department goes "to zero draft call."

Durante Remains In Hospital After Recent Collapse

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Comedian Jimmy Durante remained in St. John's Hospital over the weekend after a collapse following a stage show at the Frontier Hotel in Las Vegas.

The collapse Thursday was attributed by the 77-year-old entertainer's doctor to loss of equilibrium caused by a disorder of the inner ear. The doctor said Durante was recovering.

Durante was forced to cancel his scheduled participation in a weekend show to raise funds for the Jimmy Durante Children's Fund.

Plane Crashes In Indian City

NEW DELHI (AP) — An Indian air force jet fighter on a training flight crashed today into a crowded residential area in the coastal city of Jamnagar, killing the pilot and seven persons on the ground and injuring 48 others.

An air force spokesman in New Delhi said only the pilot, who recently qualified to fly, was aboard the aircraft.

The chief administrative officer of Jamnagar, located on the Gulf of Kutch 300 miles northwest of Bombay, confirmed that the bodies of seven civilians had been recovered from the debris.

Reports from the city said the plane slammed into garage and touched off a fire that engulfed two nearby buildings.

Among the injured were six boys playing in a school yard.

Solo Atlantic Sailor Told No One, Not Even Wife, 'Til After Trip

PLYMOUTH, England (AP) — Francis Stokes, 44, of Moorestown, N.J., is the leading candidate for the most modest sportsman of the year.

Stokes, who runs a fruit processing company, docked his 30-foot sloop Crazy Jane in Plymouth Saturday and telephoned his wife. Not until Sunday did he tell anyone else that he had sailed the sloop across the Atlantic alone.

Mrs. Stokes took the first available plane and arrived Sunday night.

Stokes said he left home June 14 on his "first long solo trip," had excellent weather and, following winds nearly all the way, averaged 120 miles a day.

Mr. and Mrs. Stokes will spend a few days in Plymouth then fly home. He said he probably will ship the Crazy Jane back.

Stranger Thought To be Escapee

Appleton police are investigating an incident early today at a northside service station involving a man matching the description of a Sunday night escapee from the Wisconsin State Reformatory Honor Farm at Oneida.

An attendant at the Owens Oil Service Station, 1221 N. Superior St., told authorities about 5 a.m. today that a young man driving a 1958 or 1959 white Dodge station wagon with a leaking transmission came to the station and traded a $3 watch in exchange for gasoline.

The unidentified man told the attendant a hitchhiker robbed him in Green Bay, leaving him only with a credit card. The man had no keys for the car, the employee said, and gave what authorities believe was a false name.

Officials believe the stranger to be a 27-year-old Watertown man who walked away from the institution Sunday at 10:30 p.m.

The auto described by the service station employee matches the one thought to be used during the escape.

Preserve Indian Culture

Tribes Hold Powwow In Milwaukee Suburb

MILWAUKEE AP — Members of the Menominee, Oneida, Chippewa, Stockbridge and other tribes of Wisconsin Indians gathered in suburban Franklin Sunday to do their own thing.

"Most youngsters in urban areas have forgotten their culture," said Miss Opal Skenadore of Milwaukee, one of the featured dancers at the powwow.

"My parents lost their culture to the government schools. It's a way for our people to get together," Miss Skenadore said. And the white man — or mo-comon, as the Menominees call him, was welcome.

Many of the Indians spent much of their time giving and trading—gossip, craft items, foods and ideas.

"Originally, this was what a powwow was all about," said Lawrence Jacobs, president of the United Indians of Milwaukee. "But now we are realizing that we have to preserve what little we have left of our culture."

A powwow today is primarily a social gathering, he and others said, but added that it also is one of the few means left for Indians to retain their culture and share the culture of other tribes.

"We gather to have a good time, because no matter where we are there is always a place in our hearts for dancing," said Gerald Sanapaw, 24, a Menominee from Keshena.

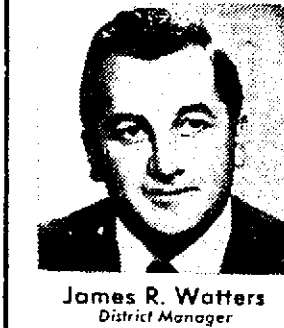

Unlike a more commercial Indian attraction, Sanapaw said, "It's not all hurry up and get it over with."

Racial Clashes Break Out in Three Cities

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Twenty persons were arrested in Michigan City, Ind., Sunday during a second night of disorders as Negroes hurling bricks and rocks at cars roamed streets in the predominantly black north side.

Elsewhere, there was a second night of clashes in Highland Park, Mich., but a tight curfew virtually halted four days of racial violence in New Bedford, Mass.

Two nights of disorders in Michigan City brought 150 National Guardsmen to join state and local police in enforcing a 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew and preventing gatherings of groups of four persons or more in off-curfew hours.

Police Chief Leon Shiparski said the trouble began after three blacks were arrested in a downtown tavern for disorderly conduct.

In Sunday night's disorder, police reported sporadic fire from snipers but said no one was hurt. A white man was pulled from his auto and beaten. He was hospitalized in fair condition.

About 15 per cent of the city's 38,000 residents are black.

In New Bedford, police Capt. Harry Kenyon said blacks there had set up barricades on several streets in the mainly Negro section of the city's West End. The area was quiet and police stayed out.

Report Threat

A police officer discounted a reported threat as the reason for staying out. "We're trying to work this thing out," he said.

Twelve persons were arrested for curfew violations.

Disorders began Wednesday when police arrested a Negro on a driving charge and a scuffle ensued. A Negro youth was killed and three others were injured Saturday night by shotgun blasts fired from a speeding car. Police charged three youths with murder.

The clashes in Highland Park grew out of the fatal shooting of a Negro in white-run bar. A white bartender was arraigned on a second-degree murder charge and released on $20,000 bail.

Police used tear gas to disperse a crowd of about 1,000 that gathered near the bar Sunday night. A firebomb thrown into the building badly damaged the interior. Another blaze burned out a grocery.

Robert Blackwell, mayor of the predominantly black community of 40,000, said police were enforcing a 9 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew.

In Palo Alto, Calif., some 260 young persons were arrested in a confrontation over a rock music curfew. Three police officers suffered minor injuries and several windows were smashed.

Proxmire Denies Goldwater Claim Of Security Leak

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., has denied an assertion that classified information was involved when he recently criticized Defense Department handling of an electronic battlefield device.

Proxmire, in a statement released Sunday, demanded that Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., retract a statement criticizing Proxmire for a comment about the device.

Proxmire planned to challenge Goldwater's charge on the Senate floor today.

In a speech July 6, Proxmire charged that the device—on which he said the Pentagon may spend up to $20 billion—"may well be an indiscriminate weapon unable to distinguish between friend or foe, combatant and civilian."

He said $2 billion already has been spent on the device.

On the following day, Goldwater said the device "is so highly classified that even the Armed Services Committee has not been able to hold hearings on it, but as long as he (Proxmire) has sprung it, so to speak, I can mention it."

"I am here to say now that the statement was wrong and that the senator from Arizona was wrong," Proxmire said Sunday. "I did not spring any classified or secret information. . . . If anyone 'sprung' this information about the electronic battlefield, it was the senator from Arizona himself."

Proxmire said the system first was mentioned publicly last Oct. 14 in a speech by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff. The device was mentioned in at least two magazines, Proxmire added, and the Westmoreland speech was inserted in the Congressional Record by Goldwater himself two days later.

They have been totally intransigent. I hope Mr. Bruce will be successful where others have failed, but very frankly I can't be optimistic about the chances because we have made every initiative conceivable except the flat abandonment of South Vietnam and that seems to be the only thing they are interested in.

I heard Sen. Fulbright say on a television program that we really didn't want free elections. Well, that's a ridiculous statement. We've offered to go along with free elections and so have the South Vietnamese, supervised by an international body, but we absolutely refuse to topple the existing South Vietnamese government just for the purpose of enhancing North Vietnam prior to those elections.

Q Do you envision a situation whereby most if not all U.S. troops could eventually leave Vietnam yet the war itself would continue?

No Advantage

A I don't think so, because if we are successful in getting U.S. troops out of Vietnam within a short time as we hope to be, the North Vietnamese will then find that there is no advantage to them in continuing the struggle, and I'm sure they will come to reasonable terms at the peace table. This is something

Nationwide Attention Hirt Enthusiastic About Summerfest

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Milwaukee's Summerfest could grow into a national attraction on the scale of New Orleans' Mardi Gras, trumpeter Al Hirt of New Orleans said Sunday.

"Your people here in Milwaukee remind me a lot of mine back home," he said. "They like nothing better than big parades and picnics and will use any excuse for having them."

"Except for New Orleans," he added. "I know of no other city besides Milwaukee where the people seem to enjoy themselves so much having shindies, parties and spicing down brews," the bearded jazzman said.

Summerfest may some day be the kind of shindig that attracts people from all over the nation—especially because of Milwaukee's reputation for gemütlichkeit.

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP)—Cambodian allies reported were 24 wounded Saturday and Sunday.

In South Vietnam, government forces reported killing 33 North Vietnamese troops in scattered clashes and finding 26 more bodies in the fifth day of fighting near Khe Sanh.

Allied officers believe their forces may have wiped out the equivalent of a full-strength North Vietnamese battalion—about 600 men—around the abandoned U.S. Marine base.

The report today brought the total enemy casualties to 417 killed and five captured since the first contact was made last Wednesday by helicopter gunships of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division.

It was the biggest enemy casualty toll in a single battlefield action in Vietnam in months. More than a third were killed by the gunships and troops flown into the area on Wednesday. Late Thursday, U.S. B52s dropped about 180 tons of bombs into the area, and South Vietnamese troops found 143 bodies in the still-smoking jungle hills Saturday.

Eban Asks for Preliminary Peace Talks

TEL AVIV (AP)—Foreign Minister Abba Eban proposed today that Israel and Egypt send delegates to "an agreed place" to discuss procedures unconditionally for later peace talks.

Addressing the Knesset, Israel's parliament in Jerusalem, Eban said preliminary talks could be of "the most unofficial nature."

Such contacts could "prepare the ground for a real negotiation which is the only exit from the present conflict," he said.

Eban's statement was regarded as significant in that it constitutes acceptance of an element understood to be in the latest U.S. proposal for a Middle East settlement.

This proposal, by Secretary of State William P. Rogers, calls for Arab-Israeli contacts under the auspices of Swedish diplomat Gunnar Jarring, a U.N. special envoy.

Also notable was Eban's omission of the phrase "direct negotiations," with regard to the preliminary talks.

This appeared to be a softening of the Israeli stand, which has been adamant that any talks should be face to face, without intermediaries. This has been unacceptable to the Arabs.

George Venable Allen, assistant secretary of state under President Truman and Eisenhower, died Saturday near Durham, N.C. Allen, 66, was a career diplomat and former director of the Foreign Service Institute. He also served in Jamaica, Greece, Egypt, Iran, India, Nepal, Yugoslavia and Greece. (AP Wirephoto)

Dean Beman Wins Milwaukee Open by Four Strokes

Three Tied for Second Place

BY RON WITT

MEQUON — Don't hit many bad shots, and you just might win yourself a tournament.

That's the formula little Deane Beman, 32-year old pro from Bethesda, Md., used to card a final round 69, good for a 72-hole total of 276 and a 3-shot victory in the Greater Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament here Sunday.

"The key to whatever success I have is hitting very few bad shots. That's the key to golf, as a matter of fact," said Beman, who broke out of a third-round tie with Don Massengale with four birdies on the front nine and then played close to the vest the rest of the way to win comfortably.

Massengale, of Jacksboro, Tex., who settled for a 73 the last day of the third annual meet, wound up with 279 in a second-place deadlock with Ted Hayes, Atlanta, Ga., and Dick Crawford, Bella Vista, Ark. Hayes had a 68 and Crawford 69 for finishing rounds.

Allergy to Grass

At 280 totals were Chi Chi Rodriguez and Jack Lewis, Rodriguez, who had to have an injection before the round because of his allergy to grass, came in with a 69 for his final 13, and Lewis had a 70—including a spectacular 5-under-par 31 on the back nine.

Lewis might well have won the meet had he not encountered troubles on the first and ninth holes. The Florence, S.C., pro had a double-bogey 6 on the former after knocking a shot in shoot good golf and miss those kind of putts."

Still Had Chance

Asked if he still thought he had a chance to catch Beman down the stretch, Massengale replied, "I was 11 under after the first 12 holes and I knew he the water, and then struggled to a triple-bogey 7 on the latter as he whiffed two shots from under a pine tree at the back edge of the green.

Beman, a 5-foot, 7-inch, 150-pounder who pocketed $22,000 as his share of the $110,000 tournament purse, credited his improved putting as the major factor in his triumph.

"The reason I won this week was because I putted better than I have all year long," he told a group of reporters huddled around a press-table afterwards. "I played better and I putted better. There isn't any way to win in this game without holing some putts."

Holing putts turned out to be Beman's forte as he zipped in birdies of six feet on the second and fourth holes, a 9-footer on No. 5, and another 5-footer on No. 9 for a 4-under-par 32. He also saved par at No. 1 with a 12-footer.

Massengale, meanwhile, fell three shots back at the turn after getting just one birdie at No. 8 and was never to recover, although he managed to cut the deficit to two strokes with a bird on the 460-yard 12th.

"I felt like I played pretty well," Massengale commented on his last day's play, "but I putted terrible, and I didn't feel good putting. I didn't know whether I was choking or what I was doing," he went on, "but I missed four or five putts inside four feet. You just can't wasn't but 12 or 13 under, so I felt like I still had a good chance. Anything can happen over the last three or four holes."

"But then I bogeyed 13 again (205-yard, par 3)," he recalled sadly. "It's been my menace all week. I had my chance and I missed it — that's all there's to it."

Beman, after burning up the front nine in a 4-under-par 32, turned conservative on the back nine and finished with a 1-over-par 37. But that was all according to plan.

"You don't want to take a chance at making any foolish mistakes at this point," Beman related. "With the pins in the back of the greens you don't want to be fooling too much, because if it takes one little hop off you're going to make a bogey."

Changed Tactics

"I really changed my tactics. I wasn't firing at the pins; I

Mich., paced the area contingent with 286 for the four-day tourney, two strokes under par. Bobby Brue of Milwaukee skied to a 74 Sunday to finish Sunday, but finished 10 strokes 289 for the tourney. Brue went out on the front nine with a two-34, but had nothing but troubles on the back side where he carded a 40.

One stroke back of Deming at 287 was Eddie Langert of Green Bay, who bogeyed two of the last three holes Sunday.

Langert was three under for the day when he three-putted the 16th for a bogey, then put his approach shot on 18 over the green and into the crowd. Bull had a 75.

13th Inning Rally Lifts Appleton to Win Over Hawks

BY ROGER PITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Edito Artega's bases loaded single enabled Appleton to edge Waterloo, 3-2, in a 13 inning marathon Sunday at Goodland Field.

A little league day crowd of 1,233 suffered through sweltering 90 degree heat as hitters struggled at the plate.

Len Massaro, Foxes relief pitcher, was nearly perfect during a 5 1/2 inning stint. Coming in during the fifth with men at first and second and one out, Massaro retired the side on a double play ball.

The only Hawks batter to reach off Massaro was Toby Heath who led off the eighth with a fly to right which was misplayed for a two base error.

Waterloo's John Dixon scattered two hits and three walks during his six inning relief job.

Isakson Doubles

Appleton scored a run in the third off starter Joe Nunn. Joe Monty led off with a Texas league single to left but was picked off by Nunn. Gary Isakson lined a double off the wall near the left field foul line and scored an out later on Ross Sapp's line single over second.

Duane Shaffer, Foxes' All-Star hurler, walked lead off batter Heath in the fourth and then served a home run pitch to Ed Siracusa which sailed over the left field wall.

The Foxes rebounded with a run in their half of the frame on Ron Davini's triple to left center and Stu Singleton's sacrifice fly.

Waterloo chased Shaffer in the fifth with back-to-back singles by Heath and Siracusa — the eighth of the game.

Massaro and George Weimer, who came on in the 11th, then stymied Waterloo without a run. Heath was the only runner to reach third during the stretch.

Infield Single

Pete Ciganovich, relieving Dixon, walked the only batters Davini and Singleton in the bottom of the 13th inning. Tom Luck came in and yielded a low infield ground single to

Edges Doug Sanders in Prestige-Filled Tourney

Birdie on 18th Hole of Playoff Gives Jack Nicklaus Title in British Open

By JOHN FARROW
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — "Let's give Jack full credit," said a disappointed Doug Sanders after losing the prestigious British Open Golf Championship by one stroke to Jack Nicklaus.

Nicklaus, the game's Golden Bear, countered after Sunday's 18-hole playoff: "How lucky can you get? I never expected to be here now. Doug had it all wrapped up on the final hole Saturday. Then he missed that short putt."

Just as the 18th was the crucial hole Saturday at the end of the regulation 72 holes, so it was again Sunday.

Sanders missed a four-foot putt on the 18th green of historic St. Andrews' Old Course, birthplace of the game, on Saturday, forcing Sunday's 18-hole playoff. Dapper Doug, in a prolonged victory drought, canned a three-footer at 18 Sunday for a birdie.

Drop Seven Footer

But it was for naught. Big Jack canned a seven-footer, also for a birdie, and it gave him a one-shot victory and his second British Open championship.

Here's how Sanders, the 36-year-old GEORGIA E WITH THE fabled short backswing, described it:

"I'm in a good position on the 18th. Jack is at the back of the green and in what could be a tough grass."

"So, I'm thinking if I get a birdie and he gets a five, then I'm the champion. But Jack, being the champion he is, chipped out and got the birdie."

The 30-year-old Nicklaus, describing his winning putt, said: "I almost hit it before I was ready. I told myself to wait for it. Hopefully, there won't be a conflict." — Ron Witt.

Nicklaus carded an even par

72 for the playoff round on the greater. Nicklaus, one of the 6,951-yard layout. Sanders finished with a 73.

Nicklaus earned $12,600, but, as usual with major championships, the benefits will be much greater. Nicklaus, one of the 17 professionals with victories in each of the world's four majors, last won the British Open at Muirhead in 1966. His last major championship was the U.S. Open in 1967. He also has won the Masters and the PGA, other jewels of golf's Quadruple Crown.

Sanders, with career earnings of over a half-million dollars, finished 64th on the money list for the U.S. tour in 1969 and hasn't won in three years. A colorful dresser who's always ready with a wisecrack or quip, Sanders had to qualify for this year's British Open, which attracted the strongest international field in its 110-year history.

Bitter Cup of Tea

He has never won a major championship and Sunday's defeat was a bitter cup of tea because he has been runnerup twice in the U.S. Open, once in the PGA, and also in the 1966 British Open won by Nicklaus.

Lee Trevino, the Mexican-American chatterbox from Texas who led the first two rounds, finished in a tie for third Saturday with South African Harold Henning with 72-hole scores of 285, two strokes higher than the five-under par 283s carded by Nicklaus and Sanders.

Tony Jacklin, the defending champion from England and winner of this year's U.S. Open, had a 286, followed by Neil Coles and Peter Oosterhuis, both of England, at 287.

Managers Happy

OAKLAND (AP) — Split doubleheaders normally don't make anyone happy, but both teams now that his job security is assured.

Brewers seemed pleased after dividing a twin bill.

Manager John McNamara of the A's was happy because club owner Charles O. Finley said he would be retained for the remainder of the season.

Dave Bristol, the Milwaukee pilot, was pleased because he saw signs of improvement in his pitching staff.

The A's won Sunday's first game 4-3 on a ninth-inning single by pinch-hitter John Donaldson. Milwaukee took the second game 2-1 behind the six-hit pitching of Lew Krausse.

Finley said he would keep McNamara as manager because "the things that have happened this season are not his fault."

The owner blamed injuries and sub-par performances by key players for Oakland's third-place standing in the American League West.

Oakland players were happy that McNamara would stay around. "It takes the pressure off him," outfielder Rick Monday said. "All those rumors about a new manager weren't doing anyone any good."

Mincher Homers

The A's won the first game

McNamara admitted it would be easier to concentrate on the team now that his job security is assured.

"I felt that every day I had to prove myself," he said.

McNamara said he would use rookie Tony LaRussa at second base for a thorough tryout. "We're looking for a second baseman, and he might be the one."

Reggie Jackson, the slumped outfielder, apparently does not figure in Oakland's present plans. He did not start either game.

Beman Happy About Decision to Withdraw From British Open Meet

These players and more top there, and I've had trouble with American Open, because the Greater Milwaukee Open for the more prestigious British Open at St. Andrews, Scotland, the past week.

But one American pro who was actually exempt from qualifying for the championship meet decided to withdraw, and instead compete against a lesser known field in the fledgling GMO. His name — Deane Beman.

"I was exempt, and I was drew last week," Beman explained to reporters following his 3-stroke victory in the GMO late Sunday afternoon at the North Shore Country Club.

There were a number of reasons for the 1969 Texas Open champion not competing in the tourney across the pond, and he elaborated.

"I hadn't been playing as well as I would have liked to play," Beman continued. "My performance has been mediocre through the year. I had won just under $16,000 on the tour prior to capturing the $22,000 top prize Sunday, and I didn't There's cold weather over my back. I play better when it's hot."

Summing up his feelings entering the GMO, Beman said, "I figured I'd stay here and grind it out, and I proved the right decision because I won."

Even though he achieved his victory over a field that did not include anyone's standout performances, Beman felt that just did not take away substantially from his personal gratification in winning.

"This wasn't here, and we'll never know whether they could. He had finished well, down the list of money-winners in the 1968 tourney.

"What about defending his GMO crown in 1971?"

"I'll be back next year," the Bethesda, Md., pro assured. "As far as I'm concerned, the only thing that would bar that would be an open conflict with something like the British Open. Hopefully, there won't be a conflict." — Ron Witt.

All-Star Pitchers Will Face Home Run Power Hitters of Both Teams

BY DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
CINCINNATI (AP) — A battery of National League's biggest guns, led by hometown howitzer Tony Perez and Johnny Bench, should put American League pitching and the fences of Riverfront Stadium to a severe test in Tuesday night's 41st All-Star Game.

National League Manager Gil Hodges and American League skipper Earl Weaver were to announce their batting orders for the mid-season classic today, and it was anticipated that right-handers Tom Seaver, 14.5, of Hodges' New York Mets and Jim Palmer, 12.6, of Weaver's Baltimore Orioles would be among the opposing starting pitchers.

The other NL starters are first baseman Richie Allen of St. Louis, second baseman Glenn Beckert and shortstop Don Kessinger of the Chicago Cubs, third baseman Perez and catcher Bench of Cincinnati and outfielders Hank Aaron and Rico Carty of Atlanta and Willie Mays of San Francisco.

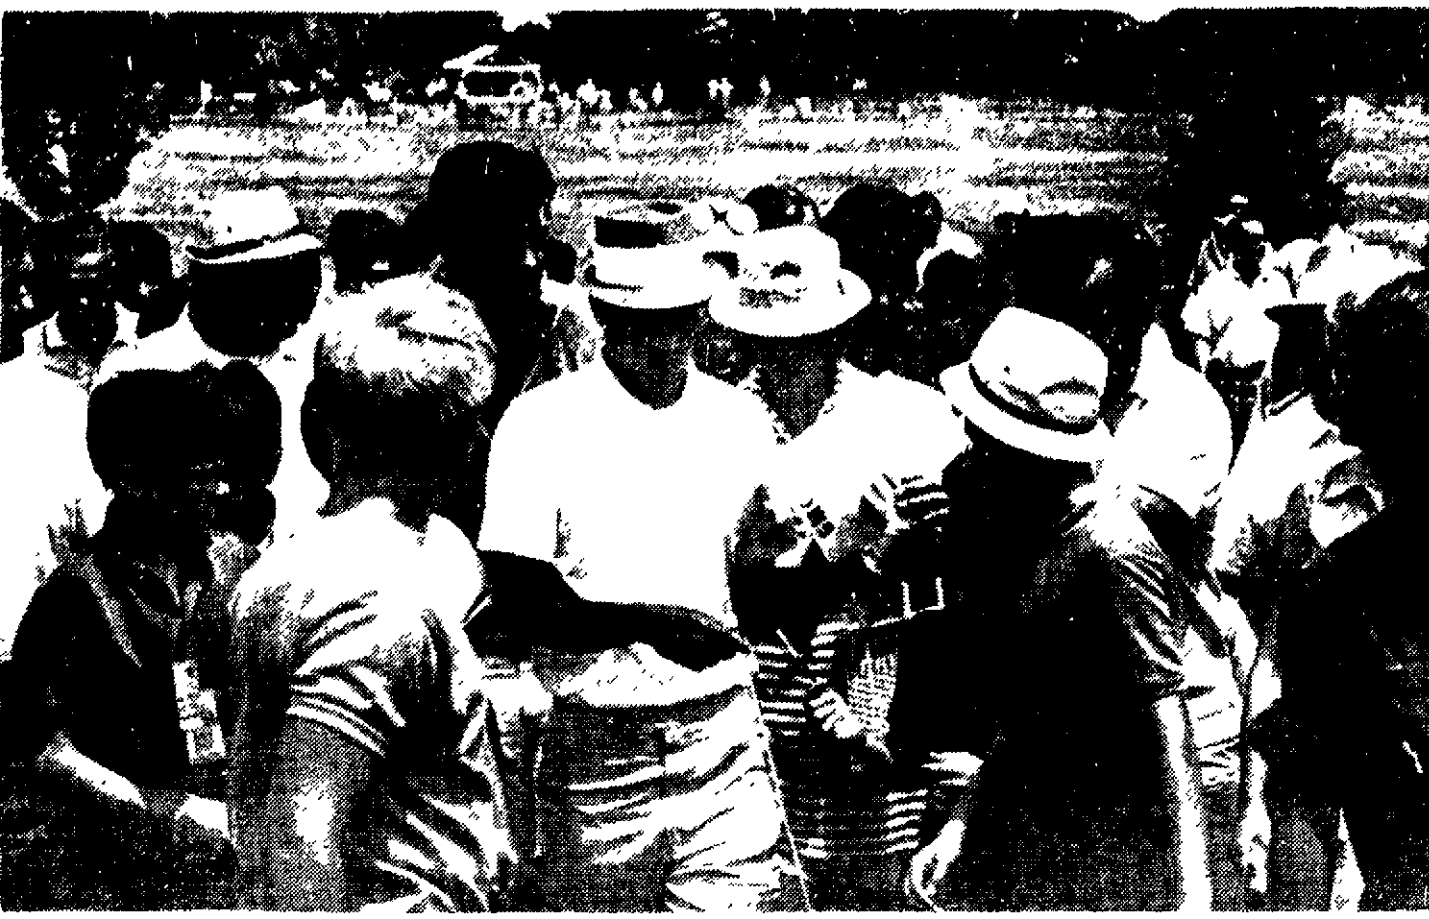

Starting for the AL will be first baseman Boog Powell and second baseman Dave Johnson of Baltimore, shortstop Luis Aparicio of the Chicago White Sox, third baseman Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota, catcher Bill Freehan of Detroit and outfielders Carl Yastrzemski of Boston, Frank Howard of Washington and Frank Robinson of the Orioles.

The pitchers, who dominated All-Star play for three consecutive years until Willie McCovey and Bench powered the Nationals to a 9-3 romp at Washington last July in a game which produced five home runs, will have their work cut out for them again this time.

Each of the starting lineups is six-deep in long ball hitters, with the Nationals showing a 151-133 advantage in homers to date this season.

Perez and Bench are 1-2 in the majors with 29 and 18 homers, respectively. Allen, with 25, Aaron, 24, Carty, 23, and Mays, 19, complete the NL big six.

Mays, a .343 hitter in 20 previous showings whose 67 at-bats

Look Ahead to Second Half Injured Cubs on Way Back

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs are only one game over the .500 mark and in third place in the National League East but Manager Leo Durocher says all signs are pointing up.

"I'm definitely encouraged," said Durocher Sunday following a 10-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phils for the Cubs' sixth victory in their last eight games.

"Everything is pointing up for the second half," said Leo. "Just having Randy Hundley and Milt Pappas is a big plus. And when I look around, all I can see is everybody's getting well."

Hundley, the Cubs' leader and great catcher, worked in only six games prior to the All-Star break and is expected to ease back into action following the mid-summer classic.

Solid Rotation
Pappas, recently purchased from Atlanta, already has posted two victories and is expected to give the Cubs a solid rotation which also includes Bill Hands, Ferguson Jenkins and Ken Holtzman.

Jenkins has done a turnabout after a bad start and Holtzman, aided by three double plays,

Speed Boat Racer Loses Control, Dies

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — James Sanders, 43, of Houston was killed Sunday when his hydroplane racing boat went out of control while traveling over 130 miles per hour on Town Lake.

Spectators said the high powered boat slipped out of control when Sanders was two-thirds down the drag race course.

"He left the water for the first time when he was doing 130 miles per hour plus," said Frank Miller of Austin Boating Club.

Sanders, an automobile dealer, was thrown from the craft when it cleared the water a second time.

Another boat racer turned in the seventh to break a 3-3 tie, then added two more in the eighth and three in the ninth to clinch the game.

Tommy John gained his seventh victory against 12 losses. Kuhn ruled accidental death by drowning.

The loser was Dick Drago.

Foxes Defeat Waterloo in 13th Inning

Wayne Francingues to load the bases and then saw a succeeding pitch bounced between third and short by Arteaga to plate the deciding run.

The Hawks stranded single runners in each of the first three innings and left the sacks full in the fourth. Another man was left on in the fifth. Only four other Waterloo runners were left on base during the next eighth frames.

Davini and Singleton opened the Foxes' sixth with singles, but didn't score as Nunn struck out the next two batters and ended the threat with a pop up.

Jim Mahoney, Foxes coach, played second base in the top of the 13th to make his debut as a player. Appleton has been forced to use catcher Arteaga in the outfield because of military commitments of other players.

Ken Hottman and Larry Linville, outfielders, and infielder Jim Redmon are serving summer camp stints at this time.

In taking home the check for $22,000, Beman eclipsed the sum total of his earnings for the previous six months. He had won just $15,933 and was listed 73rd on the list of leading PGA money winners entering the GMO.

Runnerup finishers Massengale, Hayes, and Crawford each took home $8,510 as their shares, while Rodriguez and Lewis collected $4,230 apiece.

Asked what he would do with the money he won Sunday, Beman quipped, "I don't know. I didn't make any plans in advance, and I don't have any right now."

Soviets Increase Arms for Egypt

Administration Aide Silent on U.S. Decision On Planes for Israelis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has sharply increased its shipments to Egypt of late, including amphibious troop-landing craft, according to Assistant Secretary of State Joseph J. Sisco.

The State Department's chief Middle East expert noted Sunday the offensive nature of the landing ships, but refused to pinpoint their use for any possible Egyptian crossing of the Suez Canal against Israeli positions.

Sisco, while repeating administration determination to prevent a shift of the Mideast military balance in favor of the Arab states, refused again to say whether a decision has been made to sell additional war planes to Israel.

"Support Security"

However, he went on, "The President has made it very clear that we intend to support the security of Israel and I think that you can take that at face value."

Sisco spoke on the NBC interview program "Meet the Press."

Sisco's cautious, if ambiguous, statement on the plane sale came as it was learned the administration has agreed to replace F4 Phantom fighter-bombers Israel has lost recently to Arab antiaircraft guns and missiles.

Although the Defense and State departments and the White House made their usual "neither confirm nor deny" statements Sunday, government sources said Israel will get the Phantoms under a flexible program aimed at offsetting increased Soviet involvement in the Mideast.

Future Moves

It was indicated Israel has gotten no U.S. commitment to a specific number of the powerful jets, but at the same time there were signs the supply of Phantoms will depend in part on future Soviet moves.

This could mean that increased installations of Soviet-built SAM-2 and the more advanced SAM-3 missile sites in Egypt and the use of Russian-piloted fighters along the Suez battle lines might result in more Phantoms going to Israel.

The increased effectiveness of the Egyptian air defenses—three Israeli Phantoms have been lost to improved, radar-directed SAM-2 missiles this month—also will be dealt with through U.S. aid.

It is understood American electronic equipment combat-proved in Vietnam and capable of jamming the SAM radars and radio devices is being shipped to Israel.

Similar Developments

Newsweek magazine in reporting similar developments Sunday added it had learned the first shipment of U.S. planes to Israel will include eight Phantoms.

The magazine said Israel had been assured the United States would send two Phantoms a month for an indefinite period, starting in August.

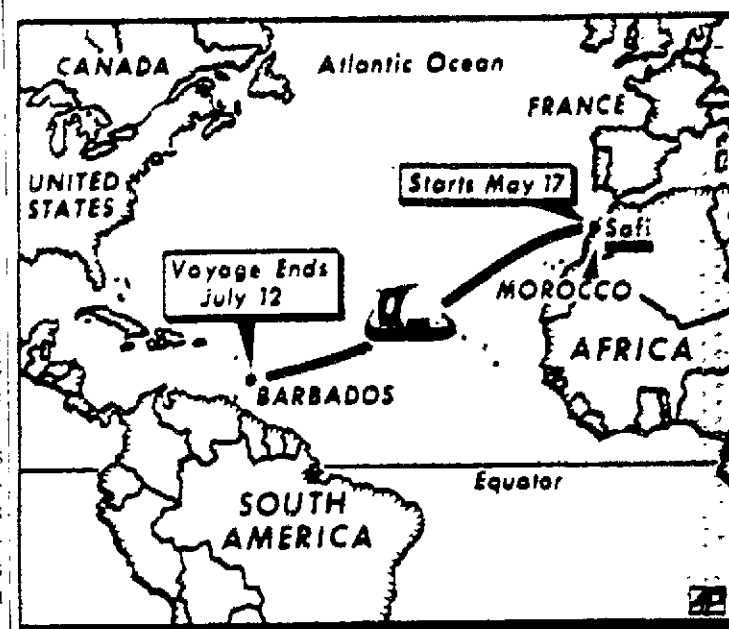

Sisco, when asked specifically about the Newsweek report, came up with the familiar response: "I can neither confirm nor deny the Newsweek report," adding, "I am not going to get into details about what we are doing, or may have done, for Israel." He added there are no plans "for involvement of American forces" in the Mideast.

Craft Waterlogged

Ra II Arrives

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) — After a two-month transatlantic crossing that he says proves the Egyptians could have discovered America 4,000 years ago, Thor Heyerdahl and his seven international crewmen planned to haul their waterlogged papyrus boat Ra II out of Bridgetown's harbor today prior to shipping it back to Europe.

The 55-year-old Norwegian explorer and his crew spent their first night ashore Sunday after completing their 3,200-mile crossing that began May 17 in Safi, Morocco.

Claiming that the successful completion of his epic journey proved the ancient Egyptians could have crossed the Atlantic, Heyerdahl declared as he stepped ashore late Sunday afternoon: "This is a great, great moment. We have definitely proved that papyrus is seaworthy."

Above Water

Only the Ra's pointed prow and stern sections were above water, and the government tug Culpepper towed it the last eight miles into harbor. But officials said the Ra could have made Bridgetown unaided; she just needed assistance to complete the journey before dark.

"It's good to be back again," Heyerdahl called to well-wishers he tied up at the customs dock in the capital of Barbados. "We are delighted to be here, especially when we came so close last year."

Heyerdahl's first attempt last year to prove his theory ended 600 miles short of Barbados when the Ra I, a larger copy of the Egyptian boats shown on ancient tomb carvings, broke up in high seas.

Small Boats

Twenty small boats escorted the Ra II into Bridgetown harbor. Heyerdahl and his crew squatted on the flat roof of the raft's cabin, waving and blowing kisses to bikini-clad girls riding alongside in speedboats. Hundreds lining the docks applauded.

Prime Minister Errol Barrow led welcoming officials, declaring: "This has established that Barbados was the first landing place for man in the Western world."

Heyerdahl, who sported a long beard grown during the voyage, also commented that the voyage showed "that eight men from eight nations on both sides of the political fence, black, white and yellow, of all different religions and backgrounds," could "live together like one family in a small cabin, 6 feet by 18 feet."

The Norwegian skipper's crewmen were from Egypt, Mexico, the Soviet Union, the United States, Italy, Japan and Morocco, and they sailed under the flag of the United Nations.

Most of the crew were on the trip last year.

Hundreds of Spectators watch as the crew of the papyrus boat Ra II prepares to dock the craft Sunday in Barbados after crossing the Atlantic Ocean.

Chance for All-Out Updating Of Procedures Offered House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major House reform bill reached the floor today, giving critics of the present system a chance to clean away what they say are centuries-old cobwebs shrouding congressional procedures.

More than 100 changes in House rules and procedures are expected to be considered before voting begins, probably Wednesday.

One of the proposals, backed by the Democratic leadership, takes away the cloak of secrecy from votes on amendments.

The reform bill sent to the floor by the House Rules Committee makes modest changes in a limited area. It is the amendments being offered that present the reformers their best chance of a thorough housecleaning.

Computer Services
Key provisions of the committee bill permit televised committee hearings, expand sources of congressional information, and open the way for using computer services in Congress.

A bipartisan group of reformers has put together a 10-amendment package designed to end secrecy in voting and committee procedures, provide more time and information for debate and streamline House operations.

They key provision permits record votes on amendments. Now, in a custom dating back to colonial times, members are counted as they vote but not identified.

Higher Attendance
Adoption of the amendment could have a far-reaching effect on House procedures. For one thing, it would produce much higher floor attendance when bills are being considered.

Now, on many occasions, millions of dollars are appropriated and major legislative decisions made with fewer than 100 of the 435 members participating in the anonymous votes.

Once the decisions are made the rest of the members troop over to answer the roll call on final passage.

The prospect of spending their afternoons on the House floor legislating dismays many members and a strong undercurrent of opposition to the amendment has built.

Sponsors Hopeful
However, House Democratic Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma and his party whip, Hale Boggs of Louisiana, have endorsed the proposal and, with a broad coalition of Republicans and Democrats pushing it, sponsors are hopeful of approval.

The reformers' major worry is that opponents, taking advantage of the anonymous voting procedure, will try to load the bill with so many amendments the leadership will reject it.

For this reason reform leaders plan to oppose many of the amendments, including any touching on the seniority system, long their prime target.

Huntley in Review
Nixon 'Frightening'

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC television newscaster Chet Huntley, reminiscing in a Life magazine interview, says that of the Presidents he was around, he liked Lyndon B. Johnson best.

"He was kind to me," he said. "As insufferable as he could be, he was a gracious and funny man at ease. I never tried to argue with him. I just kept filling his glass with Scotch and we talked about breeding Herefords."

Huntley, who will retire Aug. 1 after 14 years with partner David Brinkley, also commented on President Nixon:

"I've been with Nixon socially: I've traveled with him in his private plane; I've seen him under many conditions. The shallowness of the man overwhelms me; the fact that he is President frightens me."

Of the vice president, Huntley said: "Spiro is appealing to the most base of elements." The networks "almost created" Agnew, he added. "For God's sake, I resent being lumped in with his Eastern Establishment effete intellectuals."

He also offered these views: —"Covering the astronauts was an exercise in boredom. The networks all got trapped. Most astronauts are dull as hell, nice guys, mechanics. The only ones who had a mind of their own didn't last long."

—"It deeply concerns me that 55 per cent of the American people are getting most of their news from TV. These are people who, for the most part, are being confronted with news for the first time. And these are the people who form the Agnew clique."

South Vietnamese and American soldiers in South Vietnam.
Q Is it politically feasible, possible, at this point, to reverse course if necessary and send more Americans into Vietnam?

A Not only is it politically unfeasible, but it is directly contrary to the President's announced policy of withdrawing troops from Vietnam, a policy which he has successfully been carrying out and in which he has met every commitment that he has made thus far.

Q If for some reason the President should decide it was necessary in effort to re-escalate, given the current state of the country, can we do that?

A I don't think that statement that since the Cambodian incursion the war has spread is accurate. The war spread immediately before the Cambodian incursion because of the "hell-yeah" action of the North Vietnamese in attempting to seal off a corridor to the sea, subsequent to Sihanouk's leaving the country and a new government coming into control.

Agnew Pessimistic on Peace Talks

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew says there is little hope President Nixon's new ambassador to the Paris peace talks will be successful as long as Hanoi demands nothing short of "the flat abandonment of South Vietnam."

While pessimistic about Ambassador David K. E. Bruce's immediate chances when he takes over as chief U.S. negotiator at the talks next month, the vice president, in an interview with the Associated Press, forecast an eventual settlement from the conference.

That will come, Agnew said, when the North Vietnamese "find that there is no advantage to them in continuing the struggle," and accept reasonable terms at the peace table.

In an interview aboard Air

FVTI Strives to Maintain 'Education for All' Concept

BY MAIJA PENIKIS
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

"Education for all," is the way the total program at Fox Valley Technical School (FVTI) has been billed.

And despite some questions about this, it's true.

A check through the brochures and the catalog plus an entrance evaluation test and interviews with FVTI officials bear out the fact that almost everything possible is done to give people the opportunity for post-high school education—a major purpose for such schools.

The term "post-high school," however, could be misleading for even the people who have not completed high school are admitted to the course of their choice. Last school year, 51 such people were enrolled in full-time programs at the schools.

"About the only reason a person can't get into a program is that the classes are filled," explained Russell Van Straten, registrar.

Orientation Course

Enrollment, however, takes more than a signature on a student course card and payment of the fee. There is a whole orientation course given periodically during the summer.

In includes a briefing on financial aides available to students, a housing seminar and a student handbook discussion. Future students also may tour the facilities.

A major part of the orientation is taken up by a testing session and includes reading, mathematics, English and intelligence tests.

"This isn't to discourage anyone from entering a course he is interested in, but rather to have an evaluation profile which can serve as guides to consideration of pre-technical courses and development of a suitable program," Van Straten explained.

After taking the tests, it is not difficult for the student to see where his weaknesses are.

"If your math test was low, you certainly would find something like computer science difficult," Van Straten added.

Pre-Technical Program

But to give the student every opportunity to enroll in the course of his choice, despite weaknesses in some fields, the FVTI recently began offering the pre-technical program prior to the regular school year (and in some cases, during the school session) to give him a review of the course.

Here students proceed at their own speed through the refresher English, review math, or developmental reading courses. Instructors with specialized training help with the use of individual instructional materials.

Another recent help — though often it might be viewed as a policing tactic — was added recently when the educational committee was established to follow up students who have certain weaknesses or who may be having problems in courses.

"You have to have a 'C' average to graduate and we want to give as many people as possible the opportunity to complete the course. If they fall below the requirements, the committee can take action," Van Straten said.

Several Alternatives

This committee may either suspend a person, recommend he change his program, recommend a reduction in work load, or allow him to continue under the assistance program. The latter is used in the majority of cases.

Assignments, classroom participation, absences, tests, and student attitudes are all taken into consideration.

"It may sound as if we are policing them, but since the committee was formed, last year, 12 per cent fewer students have dropped out," Van Straten said.

"We hope, at least, that the committee has been responsible for a part of that," he said, adding, "this way we go to the student and perhaps that makes a difference. There are so many who simply feel that no one cares that they are 'a number'."

The committee is the final attempt to help those who have some barriers. On the other side of the program scale are the high school courses for those who had dropped out sometime in the past and never received a diploma, often hindering them from enrolling in post-high programs.

High School Courses

This school year, nine credit courses will be offered in the high school program at FVTI. They are varied each semester so that the students are able to select those which are of interest to them.

An overview of the full-time courses at FVTI shows that presently 12 associate degree programs with 20 majors and 12 vocational programs with 13 majors are offered.

Related training for 27 apprenticeable trades ranging from auto body to patternmaking and tile laying also is a part of the instruction in the full-time day centers.

In addition, the district operates extension and evening courses in the majority of the high schools in the 25 high school districts within VTE-12 boundaries.

Family Doctor Shortage Is Emphasized

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has only one family doctor for each 3,171 persons, the president of the American Academy of General Practice said here today.

In testimony prepared for a Senate health subcommittee, Dr. Edward J. Kowalewski said the number of persons depending on one general practitioner has tripled since 1931.

The percentage of physicians going into general or family practice dropped from 75 per cent in 1931 to 21.3 per cent in 1967, he added.

Kowalewski testified in favor of a bill which would authorize money for family-practice residencies at teaching hospitals and medical schools, establishment of family-practice departments in medical schools and training of paramedical personnel to aid family doctors.

Plea Renewed for Appellate Court System in State

MADISON (AP)—A mounting work load for Wisconsin Supreme Court justices drew renewed pleas Wednesday for the establishment of an appellate court system to screen cases before they reach the high tribunal.

Chief Justice E. Harold Hallows announced the court will carry 144 cases over until the fall because it was "humanly impossible" for the seven judges to handle them this term.

The cases represent "almost two months work" in September and October, Hallows observed.

Superhuman Effort

"In spite of the superhuman effort of all members of this court to keep current with the court work, it is quite apparent that it is humanly impossible," Hallows said.

"I repeat, as I have in the past, that there is a need for an intermediate appellate court system in this state so that this court will be relieved of the mine-run cases and permitted to spend more of its time in deliberation and decision-making of the more important cases which come before it."

508 Cases

In handing down the final decisions before the summer recess, the court announced that 508 cases were filed with it during the recently concluded term.

The court wrote 293 appellate decisions, Hallows said, and dismissed 71 cases.

The 144 cases it will carry over into the fall represent an increase of 50 more than a year ago.

Hallows noted that briefs were filed in 48 cases and arguments were ready to be heard but the court simply did not have time to get to them.

Parking Fees For UWGB Are Restructured

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — New lower priced parking permits for the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay campus have been approved by the school's board of regents.

The board okayed the lower priced parking permits for the lot from the center of the school's Shorewood campus than previously-used lots.

The regents also approved a boost in the price of permits for reserved spaces on the campus from $80 a year to $100.

They retained regular rates for faculty, staff and students in the central lots, but created the new category for the outlying lots as well.

Outer pod parking will cost faculty $30 a year, and students and staff will be charged $20 a year for permits.

The rates retained for inner pod parking are $40 for faculty members and $28 a year for staff workers and students.

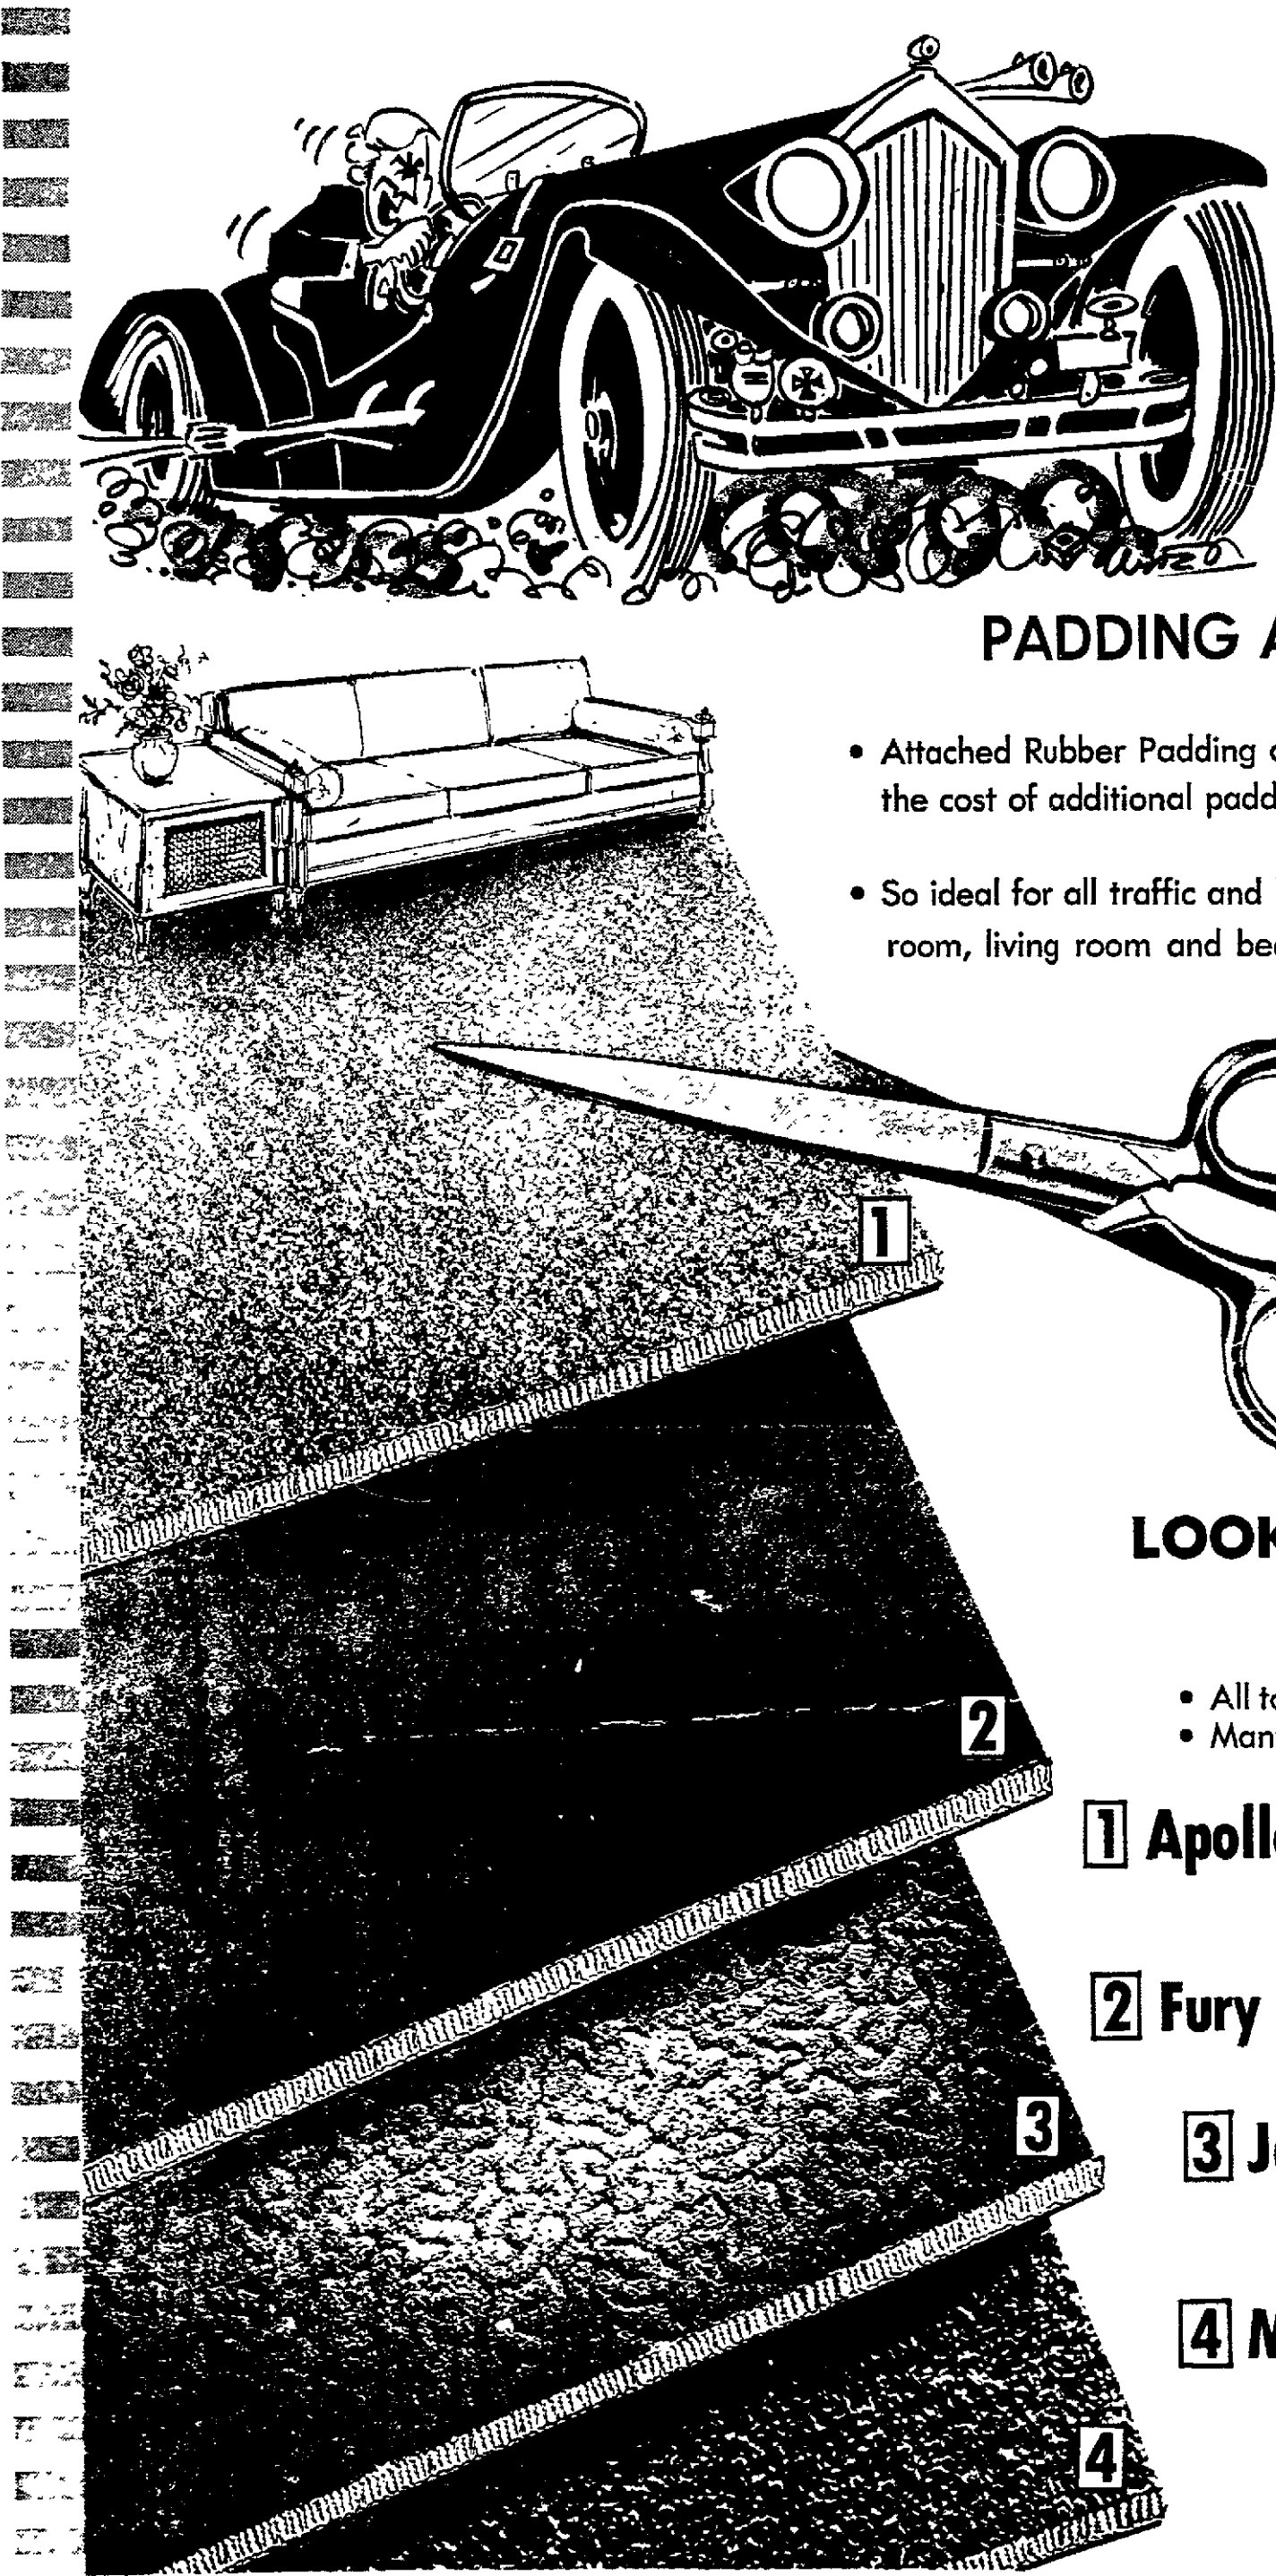

Other rates were retained, with the exception of the charge for additional stickers for additional cars owned. They were hiked from $2 to $3 a year.

Refugee Problem Not Simple to Solve

Editor, The Post-Crescent: Your comments that "the commando groups thrive on the unrest among the Palestinian refugees who multiply and who have not been assimilated by other Arab nations on purpose" and that "their existence as refugees keeps the wounds open" are only partly true; that they have not been assimilated by other Arab nations on purpose reflects a basic ignorance and overlooks the facts of history.

Firstly the Palestinians are a distinct national group with a strong culture, a homeland in Palestine and a common history. To assume that they can be assimilated into their host countries within 22 years since their first exodus from Palestine in 1948 or in three years since their second exodus in 1967 is a gross simplification. A case in point are the Jews who have been living as minorities in the West for 2000 years and have not shown any indications of assimilation in their host countries.

Secondly, two-thirds of the population of Jordan are Palestinian refugees, most of whom were village, town, or city dwellers in Palestine (now Israel), the remaining one third, the original inhabitants of Jordan, were Bedouins. The question is how do you expect one third of the population which is of nomadic tribal culture to assimilate two thirds of the population which is basically of settled and city culture? Thirdly, the desert lands of Jordan are hardly capable of even supporting its indigenous population. The west bank of the Jordan River, which is part of Palestine, and within the fertile crescent and was a marked source of revenue for the Jordanian government, was occupied by the Israelis in 1967. In short, the lands east of the Jordan River to which most of the Palestinian refugees were driven neither have available water nor fertile land to support a meager existence.

In essence, then, cultural and economic assimilation would fail even with a determined government effort. The lapse of time is not likely to change Palestinian attitudes or commando operations. The only thing that is likely to change is the status of Israeli occupation of Arab land. The lapse of time to the Israelis means more American and European Jewish immigrants to settle on Palestinian, Egyptian, and Syrian land seized in 1967, while refugees rot in their desert camps.

While the big powers busy themselves with their hocus pocus appeals for "peace," justice is tucked away in their back pockets and everybody stands to lose with the exception of the Israelis who sit on three times the land area of pre-1967.

Wrightstown Badly Needs Kindergarten Program

Editor, The Post-Crescent: Some people in Wrightstown School District do not know what a kindergarten is. Now is their chance to find out. At the present time a pre-school is being held for 33 of our pre first graders. Stop in any morning now to July 24th and observe the class in operation.

Give the school a ring first to make sure the children are not on a field trip. As a group experiment, youngsters who had a year of kindergarten scored three times higher on the Metropolitan Readiness Test than children who had not had the opportunity to attend kindergarten. This was the same test given to 80 of our children. 80 of the children were not fit for 1st grade. So it is now a recorded fact that our children do need kindergarten. Can our school district afford not to offer kindergarten? Which is better, kindergarten at age 5, remedial reading at age 9, being left back at age 12, or quitting school at age 16? Stop in to see the Pre-School and help make this program available to all the children next year. Attend the annual

Americanos Impressed In Parade at Brillion

Editor, The Post-Crescent: I wish to comment on a performance of the Americanos Drum and Bugle Corps in a parade held recently in Brillion. Not only was their performance excellent, but the behavior, discipline, and courtesy of these boys and girls was outstanding and well worth praise. The appearance of the Americanos filled the hearts of many parade viewers and is exactly what most people are looking for in our young people.

Appleton must be proud to have an organization like the Americanos, and similar organizations, represent them around Wisconsin. We hope Appleton continues to support them and the work involved in managing such an organization. We need more dedication like this to give our boys and girls a chance to develop their talents, leadership, and self-discipline in order for them to give to our society and become solid citizens in our communities and the world. Onward Americanos!

Board OK Sought For Safety Building

Construction Site Next to Courthouse

The proposed joint Outagamie County-Appleton safety building faces yet another hurdle Tuesday night when the County Board will be asked to approve the construction of the building next to the courthouse.

While passage of the resolution would still leave the proposed joint venture a long way from final approval, it would put the city and county on common ground in the issue for the first time since early in negotiations.

Tuesday's meeting of the board starts at 6:30 p.m. and is the second night session of the summer for the County Board.

The safety building proposal, as it now stands, is considerably different from first plans for a joint structure. The present proposal calls for construction of "such a building deemed necessary to meet the immediate needs."

Record Set For Pumping Brillion Used Over 1.3 Million Gallons Of Water June 30

BRILLION — A daily water pumpage record was set here June 30 when 1,329,000 gallons of water were used for industrial and residential purposes.

Glen Campbell, director of public works, reported at a recent utility commission meeting.

City pumps are capable of pumping 115 million gallons of water daily, Campbell said. This eliminates the need for a lawn sprinkling ban.

City-wide lawn sprinkling due to dry weather and an unusually high consumption by industries attributed to the amount of water used June 30, Campbell said.

The Brillion Iron Works, Inc., which usually uses water from Spring Creek in its heat exchanger system for cupola cooling, used about 500 gallons of city water per minute on June 30 because the creek was dry.

Water consumption at the Larsen Canning Company also was up because State Department of Health rules call for city water to be used in the canning process, rather than the company's own water source.

Over a million gallons of water were pumped on June 15, 23, 24 and 29 also, Campbell reported.

For New London Area

Car Enthusiasts Organizing Club

BY SKIP HAMMERBERG Post-Crescent Correspondent

NEW LONDON — Two car enthusiasts are spending a lot of their spare time trying to organize an auto club for motorists in the area.

Terry Dorschner and Don Leinhard explain that they want a club that will serve a two-fold purpose. First they want to offer an organized program for the members.

Among the original ideas is to have a point system, with points given for meeting and program attendance and obtaining new members, and points lost for traffic violations. At the end of each year the member with the most points will be awarded a trophy.

The club will hold regular monthly meetings, sponsor rallies, road-e-os, picnics, and other group programs, both for club members and non-members.

One of the objects copied from similar programs in other clubs, will be to help motorists in distress. Leinhard reported that they hoped to have some first aid sessions for the members.

The club will serve as a way for members to organize and travel as a group to races and sporting events throughout the area. A member will probably be able to get discounts to some programs and car parts, and free advice and help from fellow club members.

Dorschner noted that at the present time "all the kids are doing is driving around town every day." He noted that this creates traffic problems and promotes a bad public image of the young motorist.

Members of the club will have other activities and projects, and will not be as likely to be seen squealing their tires and making noise with cars.

The club will be open to any male with a valid drivers license. "We hope to have a program for the women in the future," Dorschner stated.

Members between the ages of 16 and 18 will need parental consent to join. This requirement was made to prevent someone from using family cars without permission.

There will be a membership fee and monthly dues, and members will get a club card, possibly a jacket, and a car plate. Members do not have to have a car, nor are they required to have any special make, model or style of vehicle. "They can own a truck and be a member if they want," reported Leinhard.

The first meeting of the club was held at Hatton Park July 7, and 15 people attended.

Manawa Facility

Work Starts Soon On Nursing Home For 66 Residents

MANAWA — Construction is expected to start soon on a 66-bed licensed nursing home in the center of the city.

Central American Builders Corp., Appleton, is financing the $585,000 structure, and a community leasing company will be formed to operate the facility when a goal of $55,000 in working capital is reached.

According to Myrle Hales, president of the Farmers' State Bank here and an officer of Manawa Industries, which is promoting the home, $47,000 in pledges already have been received. The latest funds were donated by the Lions Club from the summer rodeo.

$5,500 Per Month

Hales said that when enough money is raised, a meeting will be called to elect officers and directors of the leasing corporation. It will pay $5,500 per month for 10 years, under the agreement with the builders.

Miss Evelyn Otto, who currently runs the Manawa Convalescent Home, will be the administrator of the skilled nursing home. The convalescent home then will be shut down.

The home will be located in the center of town, on the former George Hoffman farm. Hales said the builders eventually may construct seven units of low-rent apartments on the site.

Under state regulations, a skilled nursing home has nurses available around the clock. A doctor will be in residence at the home for two hours a day. According to Hales, 25 patients have said they will move in.

New Appleton Plant Expects To Employ 40

The new Ray-O-Vac Division, ESB, Inc., dry battery manufacturing plant to be constructed at Appleton's Northeast Industrial Park, is expected to employ about 40 persons, it has been learned.

Construction has been started in anticipation of the plant being in production in the latter part of 1971. A few persons will be brought in to get the plant operating but the majority of the employees will be hired from the Fox Valley.

The total cost of the building and equipment will be something over $500,000, it has been learned. The Oscar J. Boldt Construction Co., Appleton, is the general contractor.

Oscar Boldt has been credited for playing a major role in the firm deciding to locate in Appleton. The attitude of the people in this area and the Northeast Industrial Park also played a part in the company's decision, it was learned.

The first issue of the Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce's economic profile of the area also was viewed before the decision was made, and Byron Rasmussen, state economic development consultant, assisted in contacts.

"We're very happy with the announcement," said Donald Stone, chamber manager. "We believe this industry is an excellent one to have in the area."

He added that he thinks this demonstrates the desirability of having this type of land (industrial park) available for industrial use.

Ray-O-Vac also manufactures lighting devices.

Clintonville Police Arrest 16 in June Traffic Violators Are Largest Group To be Apprehended

CLINTONVILLE — Sixteen arrests were made by Clintonville police during June, according to the report of Police Chief James Beggs.

Three arrests were made for speeding, four for failure to stop at arterial or to obey traffic signals, two for registrations, two for disorderly conduct, and one each for driving too fast for conditions, inattentive driving, operating a vehicle while intoxicated, knowingly fleeing an officer and drunkenness.

Five cases of breaking and entering were reported, four of vandalism, and two of larceny. Three checks were collected for merchants.

Juvenile Cases
Two sets of fingerprints were taken, three drunkometer tests given, two death messages delivered and six minor boys and two minor girls apprehended.

Eighteen calls were turned over to other departments, four accidents were investigated, nine accidents were reported to other departments, seven escorts were provided, 11 out-of-state vehicles were checked, 15 doors or windows were found open, 13 conservation department calls received, and 167 calls handled.

Two fire calls and eight rescue calls were answered. Nine blood runs were made. Twelve warnings were issued on cats and dogs.

Children Tour
Thirty-five Lutheran children were given a tour of the police and fire departments.

Members of the police department worked on the high water, emergency experienced in the city. Chief Beggs attended court in Waupaca for two days on the "fish" case.

Parking meter collections were $679.20 for the month with parking meter fines paid of $42 for a total of $721.25.

Fines for the month amounted to $372 with costs paid of $25.30 for a total of $397.30.

Half-Million Discarded Bottles, Cans Collected In Bank Clean-up Drive

MOUNT VERNON, Wash. (AP) — In an attempt to make Skagit County's somewhat tidier, First Federal Savings & Loan Association offered two cents apiece for bottles and cans removed from the landscape.

The citizenry had responded with approximately 550,000 of the used containers when the cleanup drive ended at the weekend, costing the firm $11,000.

Rex Wilson, vice president of First Federal, said the response was a lot greater than he had bargained for, but commented "We deal mostly in real estate. What better investment could we make than in prettying up the landscape?"

scrambling, seeking something to hold on to in preparation for the inevitable lurch prior to the ship grounding on the beach.

The cry to prepare for beaching is heard regularly aboard the tank landing ship USS Outagamie County (LST 1073). Although running aground is contrary to the rules of good seamanship, this type of ship is designed to do just that. A shallow draft and flat bottom allows it to beach with little risk.

Tank landing ships such as the Wisconsin county namesake were born with the development of amphibious warfare on the invasion beaches of World War II. They have actively participated in every amphibious assault during armed conflict in which the United States has been called upon to take part.

Large Storage
The ship's large cargo storage capability makes her ideal for transporting men and equipment. Coupled with the ability to beach, it is unlikely that any ship outside her class can off-load the same amount of equipment as quickly as the LST.

A veteran of three wars, Outagamie County is playing a vital role in the Southeast Asian conflict.

In the course of her first Southeast Asian deployment the Guam-based LST carried 12,000 tons of cargo between Da Nang and Chu Lai. Her cargo included everything from soft drinks to cement.

Landing Deck
The ship's hull design allows Outagamie County to perform another key function in Vietnam — a mobile logistic support ship. Operating in the shallow waterways of the Mekong Delta, LST's resupply river patrol boats with water, fuel, and ammunition. The ship's main deck can be used for landing helicopters which load men and supplies for further transfer inland. Outagamie County expects to take her turn as part of these mobile riverine forces in the near future.

Although designed primarily to "land troops and equipment directly on the beach," Outagamie County is currently engaged in the troop withdrawal from Vietnam. During a recent 4½-month period the ship assisted in the withdrawal of 350 troops, 200 vehicles and 1,500 tons of cargo from Vietnam.

Supporting the boats engaged in moving Vietnamese refugees from Cambodia to Vietnam, and serving as census takers in the remote Mariannas Islands were other operations conducted recently.

"Versatility is the key to the success of the LST," states the ship's skipper, Lt. Cmdr. Steven L. Turner. "We can do anything but go fast."

Card Players Mark 50 Years At Clintonville

CLINTONVILLE — The Joker Club, a group of women playing "500," observed its 50th anniversary at a dessert-coffee card party Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. A. Martin, 12 W. Fourteen's St.

The club started in 1920 at Marion with 21 members. Twelve of the charter members were present this week, together with another member who joined the club later.

Through the years the women have continued to play "500" and meet now when a member has a birthday.

The ladies reminisced about their early card parties, when they brought their babies along for the afternoon since babysitters were not known at that time. As a special event, husbands sometimes would be invited even though it meant finding room for 40 or more people in a house.

Present club members are Mrs. Ben Maue, Tigerton, Mrs. Len DeVaud, Mrs. Martin and Mrs. H. J. Olson (who is not a charter member), all of Clintonville; Mrs. Adrian Kratzke, Mrs. Ruth Wulk, Mrs. H. A. Spiegel, Mrs. Regina Daley, Mrs. Clara Miller, Mrs. Ed J. Fuchs, Mrs. Martha Bowers, Mrs. Mabel Peters and Mrs. Emory Rogers.

Computer Helps Pick Interstate Route

With the cooperation of the Environmental Awareness Center of the University of Wisconsin, the State Highway Commission is going to get a computer recommended routing as part of its planning for the best location for the future interstate highway between Milwaukee and Green Bay.

As explained by Philip Lewis Jr., director of the Environmental Awareness Center, the special project will work in this way:

The computer was instructed to plot a 110-mile-long strip of land lying west of Lake Michigan between Green Bay and Milwaukee. Researchers inventoried all of this land with respect to 130 elements, ranging from location of historical sites and ecologically valuable areas to productive farmland and highway engineering requirements. The computer then was instructed to plot all these elements on a grid.

All this will result in maps showing the location and density of each of the elements on separate maps and all of them combined on a single map, the idea being to recommend a route with the least destructive impact on the landscape while still meeting highway design requirements.

Highway engineers for generations have had to live with the reputation of believing that natural beauty must give way to progress in the form of new ribbons of concrete. The combined university-Highway Commission research project indicates that this need not be the case.

It also is good to note that the Environmental Awareness Center has not judged political influence and local economic ambitions as among the elements which ought to be fed into the computer to help decide the eventual routing for the badly needed Green Bay-Milwaukee link to the interstate highway system.

The Rumor About the 1972 Elections

The Nixon administration has hired the Rand Corp., one of those super think tank organizations, to study the possibilities of postponing the 1972 presidential election if it is interfered with by radical organizations.

Ridiculous? Yes. Harmful to a nation which has some bad experiences with the credibility gap in Washington? Yes. Harmful to a nation which is trying to explain its form of free government to doubtful people in other parts of the world which know firsthand about government calling off or rigging elections? Yes. A rumor probably being spread by groups in this country hoping to increase distrust and doubt? Unfortunately, also yes.

The rumor is spreading around the country in this age of instant and mass communication. It is circulating on campuses in the South, in New England, and on the West Coast. Both the White House and the Rand Corp. have ordered searches through records and letters of the past few years to try to find something which could be misinterpreted or distorted into such an incredible rumor. They have had no success.

As near as can be figured out, the rumor was born in a brief item in the April 5 edition of the Staten Island Advance. It "reported" that "the White House is ordering up several hush-hush security studies and one of them is reported to address the question, 'What would happen if there is no presidential election in 1972?' because presidential advisers were supposed to be concerned about "the chances of radical elements disrupting government operations.

including the elections." The newspaper said the Rand Corp. "apparently" had undertaken such a study.

The lessons in all this for responsible journalism are obvious. The press must be alert and diligent in warning the public of dangers. But this responsibility includes determining first that there are facts before rushing into print with a story of such shocking dimensions as this one.

There are other lessons. Many of those repeating the rumor say they read it in the Wall Street Journal. What they really should be saying is that the Journal printed a report saying that the Nixon administration was finding it hard to spike the rumor that the Rand Corp. was hired to study the idea of cancelling the 1972 election if radicals threatened to disrupt it. The lesson is that a denial based on fact often cannot overtake what is not true.

The best summary of the whole sorry affair was given by Daniel Moynihan, a counsel to the President, in a recent commencement address. He noted that there is "fear and anxiety around us (and) the fund of public trust has been grievously depleted."

But, said Moynihan, "Submission to nameless fears is a form of concession to those anything but nameless elements who wish very little good for this society and who are capable of doing it endless, even permanent, damage."

These are good words to measure against statements which are recklessly circulated these days by those who want the citizen to believe only the worst about his government.

Quiet Purge in Czechoslovakia

The hard-liners in Czechoslovakia have been moving slowly but their aim has been apparent.

Former Communist party leader Alexander Dubcek, the leader of the ousted progressive forces, was recalled last month for his assignment as Ambassador to Turkey. The alleged reason was to visit his ailing mother but nobody really believed it. Now he has been removed from his position and undoubtedly will be kicked out of the Communist party and probably sent to some minor job in a remote part of his native Slovakia.

June 23rd it was officially announced that former Premier Oldrich Cernik has resigned "at his own request" from his already demoted position as head of the Board for Technical and Investment Development. There are rumors that Mr. Cernik, too, will face party discipline and possible expulsion.

But while these well known figures gain the headlines, the purge of lesser known individuals and organizations who exulted in the few months of the reform and liberal government of Mr. Dubcek are also being weeded out. There has been pressure to demand stricter punishment for anyone who took part in that regime or is even on record in any way as approving it. Factory committees, university students, faculties and administrators and probably the current party leader, Dr. Gustav Husak, who sought to ease the transition to the hard-liners and may lose his own position in the upheaval, have all been mentioned.

Czechoslovakia is settling down to a mood of resignation and near despair. But some day there will be other Dubceks and Cerniks to challenge the control from Moscow. And then there will be others. As some Soviet writers have been noting, a society cannot live indefinitely when the only cohesive element is force and power.

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Post for July 21, 1870.

Since our last issue the world has been startled by the declaration of war on the part of France against Prussia. Although this result has been predicted for some time past, yet the excitement it has created is none the less intense.

By order of the President, Gen. Sherman will soon start for Europe to observe the operations of the contending armies. He will be accompanied by several members of his staff.

At Chicago on the 17th inst. the Germans held a meeting to take action and express their sympathy in the struggle now

Kraft Writes
Nixon Rebuffs Rogers, Takes Tougher Stance on Mid-East

WASHINGTON — The sudden stiffening of the American position in the Near East reveals still another fissure in the Nixon team. There is a basic difference of outlook between the President and the Secretary of State.

Secretary William Rogers and his aides have been coming on so soft about the Near East that there began to loom the danger the Russians would feel they could move with impunity in the area. The President and his aides felt obliged to speak with special force in order to unsay and undo some of the impressions left by the Secretary and his aides.

To understand what happened it is first necessary to get a feel for the relationship between Mr. Nixon and Mr. Rogers. It is a relationship not unlike that between the President and Robert Finch, the former HEW Secretary who is now in semi-retirement as a White House aide. For like Finch, Mr. Rogers is an old friend, generally felt to be more liberal and more attractive than the President. As in the case of Mr. Finch, the Rogers expertise lies with people, not with problems.

Cares About People

The Secretary knows very little about the details of foreign affairs, but he cares about getting on with the Russians. He cares about getting on with the State Department Arabists who genuinely believe that the real obstacle to peace in the Near East is Israeli intransigence. And he cares about getting on with the Congress and the press — as witness the fishy sounding stories that his objections blocked the Cambodian operations for 24 hours.

On matters of policy, of course, Mr. Rogers checks with the White House. But in the recent past, with the President preoccupied by Cambodia, the Secretary has been setting the tone in the Near East. And the result was a long sequence of sunny American smiles as the Russians moved deeper and deeper in penetration of Egypt and the Near East.

Early in March the Russians began putting their latest surface-to-air missiles — the SA-3 — around Cairo, Alexandria, and Aswan in the Nile delta. It was a major step, for in the past the Soviets have been very careful about sending such weapons abroad. Moscow never gave them, for example, to Vietnam.

Kraft

But the reaction of Secretary Rogers was mild. On March 23 he wrote off the new missiles as "defensive." At the same time he announced a negative decision on the long-standing Israeli request for more Phantom and Skyhawk jet planes.

On April 18 came an even more significant Soviet advance in the penetration of Egypt. Soviet pilots, previously stationed in Egypt as instructors, began flying operational missions to protect the newly installed SA-3 missiles.

The White House, on that occasion, did issue a warning. But Secretary Rogers' main response was to present, on June 18, a new peace "initiative" for talks between Israel and the Arab states.

Five days later, the Russians took still another step toward penetration of the Near East. On June 23, we now know, a new set of Soviet missiles was placed on and around the Canal Zone. The new set included advanced SA-2 missiles placed in the zone and two SA-3 missiles placed within range of the Canal Zone.

Nasser Visits Moscow

On June 29, moreover, President Gamal Abdel Nasser arrived in Moscow for a state visit with an entourage including his old leftwing crony and chief promoter of the Cairo-Moscow axis, Ali Sabri, and his secretary of war, Gen. Mohammed Fawzi. The state visit seemed about to formalize a further intensification of Egypt's military relationship with the Soviet Union.

In the next two days, accordingly, the White House moved brusquely and dramatically to stiffen the American position. On June 30 a senior aide indicated the American objective was nothing less than moving the large-scale Soviet airbases and missile emplacements out of the Near East. On July 1, in his TV interview, the President said that Soviet actions in the Near East presented the danger of a "collision between the super-powers."

The Soviet (and Egyptian) response to this warning is almost certain to be a soft-sounding disclaimer of aggressive intent, full of ambiguity as regards future actions. That means that, if Washington does intend to put a stop to Soviet penetration, there will have to be a serious application of pressure.

Applying pressure in the Near East at this time is not easy. Apart from giving more planes to the Israelis, there are not many good moves on the board. But at the very least there should be a reversal of the roles now being played by the Secretary and the President.

All of us will be much better off if the Secretary leads his department to firm stands on serious issues. For it is a perilous thing when international security is made to rest in an explicit personal way on a show of machismo by the President of the United States.

Wisconsin Report
Cheating on Taxes
Not Very Prevalent
In Our Honest State

BY PHILIP C. CULP
MADISON — The investigation of persons failing to file Wisconsin tax returns or filing false tax returns is assigned to the Intelligence Section of the Wisconsin Department of Revenue.

This section was created in 1961 because it was found a special type of investigator was necessary to conduct of a violation of a sales tax law is a fine of not more than $250 or a sentence of not more than one year in the county jail.

The penalty for willful failure to file an income tax return or report is not more than a $500 fine or imprisonment not to exceed six months or both.

The most serious tax crime is willful filing of a false or fraudulent income tax return. This offense is punishable by a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment not to exceed five years or both.

The relatively new intelligence section of the State Department of Revenue has the major responsibility of tracking down violators of the state income tax law, the most important of the state treasury revenue producers. John Wyngaard, vacationing Madison correspondent, asked Philip Culp, chief of the division, to describe its work.

these investigations. Men assigned to this work must be trained accountants as well as trained criminal investigators.

The section obtains its leads from citizen complaints and from information discovered during the routine audit of tax files. The section makes a preliminary investigation and, if it determines that a crime has probably been committed, it continues with a full scale investigation which may result in criminal prosecution.

If no prosecution is warranted, the case is referred to the Audit Section of the department for collection of any tax that may be due.

Cases concluded by the section are carefully and thoroughly reviewed and no prosecution is initiated without the recommendation of the section chief and the approval of the director of the Bureau of Planning and Technical Services, and the secretary of Revenue. Taxpayers and their representatives are given every opportunity to explain why they believe no prosecution should be recommended.

Penalty Range Wide

There is a wide range of penalties for tax crimes depending on the seriousness of the offense.

The penalty upon conviction

It is apparent that the penalty for cheating on taxes can be severe but this is as it should be because cheating on taxes is the same as stealing substantial sums of money from the government.

For example, some recent typical cases have included an evasion of over $4,600 in tax over a two year period; $3,000 of tax over a three year period; and $1,500 of tax over a three year period.

Few Crimes Committed

Wisconsin is fortunate that there are relatively few tax crimes committed in the state each year. During a typical year, the Intelligence Section receives about 200 referrals and complaints are eventually signed on about 50 of these referrals.

This low figure is primarily due to the basic honesty of most Wisconsin citizens but we believe that vigorous enforcement of the tax laws is also a contributing factor.

The Department of Revenue needs the cooperation of all citizens if it is to continue to be effective in the enforcement of these laws.

Therefore, we urge anyone having information regarding a possible violation to call the Intelligence Section collect at 608-266-3969.

Banning of DDT Hurts
State Potato Industry

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

When we read the papers, we are inclined to believe that the big issues that confront the nation at present are the war, inflation and crime. At the same time, we all agree that the way the nation is ruled will depend entirely on the people that we elect to get the job done.

There is no question in my mind but that too many of the people that we have elected to rule our state and nation in the past have been more interested in getting and holding their jobs than in working for the best interest of the people they represent. This past year, right here in Wisconsin, we have had a striking example of grounds for my thinking. U.S. Senator Nelson, Dem., Wis., former governor of this great agricultural state, promoted the banning of the use of DDT, one of our most efficient insecticides, on the grounds that there had been found small amounts of the residue of this valuable insecticide in fish, etc. With his efforts, he got his name before the people, and no doubt gained a great deal of favor in the city population and no doubt will gain a lot of votes in the next election if he decides to hold his job, but what did he do for the potato industry here in Wisconsin, the state he represents?

There was a time when Wisconsin was one of the leading states in the production of potatoes. Potatoes rank next to wheat and meat as our leading source of food. Even though Wisconsin is well adapted to the production of potatoes, we do not see them quoted on the Milwaukee markets anymore. This fading industry has been caused largely by the pests, known as the Colorado potato beetle, the leaf hopper, and fly beetle, pests that were easily and economically eliminated or controlled by the use of DDT. Now we are confronted with Sen. Nelson's asperation, under the pretense that he has been working for the good of the people he represents, by banning the use of DDT in Wisconsin.

So the thought comes to me, was the Senator more concerned about harvesting votes, than improving the economy of the state? Now that we have a forthcoming election in November, let's study our lesson, and think before we vote.

Refugee Problem

Not Simple to Solve

Editor, The Post-Crescent: Your comments that "the commando groups thrive on the unrest among the Palestinian refugees who multiply and who have not been assimilated by other Arab nations on purpose" and that "their existence as refugees keeps the wounds open" are only partly true; that they have not been assimilated by other Arab nations on purpose reflects a basic ignorance and overlooks the facts of history.

Firstly the Palestinians are a distinct national group with a strong culture, a homeland in Palestine and a common history. To assume that they can be assimilated into their host countries within 22 years since their first exodus from Palestine in 1948 or in three years since their second exodus in 1967 is a gross simplification. A case in point are the Jews who have been living as minorities in the West for 2000 years and have not shown any indications of assimilation in their host countries.

Secondly, two-thirds of the population of Jordan are Palestinian refugees, most of whom were village, town, or city dwellers in Palestine (now Israel), the remaining one third, the original inhabitants of Jordan, were Bedouins. The question is how do you expect one third of the population which is of nomadic tribal culture to assimilate two thirds of the population which is basically of settled and city culture?

Thirdly, the desert lands of Jordan are hardly capable of even supporting its indigenous population. The west bank of the Jordan River, which is part of Palestine, and within the fertile crescent and was a marked source of revenue for the Jordanian government, was occupied by the Israelis in 1967. In short, the lands east of the Jordan River to which most of the Palestinian refugees were driven neither have available water nor fertile land to support a meager existence.

In essence, then, cultural and economic assimilation would fail even with a determined government effort. The lapse of time is not likely to change Palestinian attitudes or commando operations. The only thing that is likely to change is the status of Israeli occupation of Arab land. The lapse of time to the Israelis means more American and European Jewish immigrants to settle on Palestinian, Egyptian, and Syrian land seized in 1967, while refugees rot in their desert camps.

While the big powers busy themselves with their hocus pocus appeals for "peace," justice is tucked away in their back pockets and everybody stands to lose with the exception of the Israelis who sit on three times the land area of pre-1967.

Kindergarten Program

Editor, The Post-Crescent: Some people in Wrightstown School District do not know what a kindergarten is. Now is their chance to find out. At the present time a pre-school is being held for 33 of our pre first graders. Stop in any morning now to July 24th and observe the class in operation.

Give the school a ring first to make sure the children are not on a field trip.

As a group experiment, youngsters who had a year of kindergarten scored three times higher on the Metropolitan Readiness Test than children who had not had the opportunity to attend kindergarten. This was the same test given to 90 of our children, 80 of the children were not fit for 1st grade. So it is now a recorded fact that our children do need kindergarten. Can our school district afford not to offer kindergarten? Which is better, kindergarten at age 5, remedial reading at age 9, being left back at age 12, or quitting school at age 16?

Stop in to see the Pre-School and help make this program available to all the children next year. Attend the annual

Doesn't Like Obstacle Course on College Ave.

Editor, The Post-Crescent: Hope you keep printing articles about the obstacle course in our downtown College Avenue.

Our family has not seen any beauty in it at all. All it is is a place for people to throw waste. Ever try to walk down the Avenue with your family? We have only two children left at home, but we can't even get the four of us to walk together.

Just think how nice an uncluttered new sidewalk would have been. We could have ssen from one end of the Avenue to another.

If City Hall wanted to do something for us taxpayers, why didn't they lower our property taxes, even a few dollars, and the people who have to pay for the waste on the Avenue would have all gained.

How true it is, that there is such a bunch of dirty-looking children sitting there. Sometimes one can hardly walk by. Glad that someone has finally been opening their eyes to this.

Shelters Have 300 Tons of Supplies

In its cellars, basements and underground tunnels Outagamie County harbors more than 300 half-kid-pleasing wild cherry and pineapple candies, carbohydrate supplement and half-price crackers.

The supplies paid by the federal government belong to the county upon delivery and are stored in 104 buildings throughout the county designed as public fallout shelters.

Currently there is room and supplies for 78,336 county residents in the shelters according to the county Government Director How.

Another 25 buildings which would serve as shelters although they are not yet licensed would serve a total of 92,000 and facilities for an additional 30,000 will be added.

Rathbun said this shelter period would serve approximately 140,000 people.

The possibility of a thermonuclear attack on Outagamie County is minimal.

Rathbun said his concern would be directed by the county emergency government from nuclear fallout blown by the wind from a target area better known as civil defense.

Civil defense literally refers to such as Milwaukee or Chicago in a panic situation.

The 14 days should give fallout enough time to spread and the threat to diminish, but then another problem looms—security food, clothing and medical supplies.

The other major disaster that would activate the Emergency Operating Center (EOC) would be a severe riot, Rathbun said—another situation with slight chances of occurring.

Planning for tornadoes and tornado damage is almost impossible, because of a funnel's unpredictable origins and path, Rathbun said.

If officials felt that the nation was definitely going to be attacked, 27 sirens throughout the county would ring every three minutes for at least 15 minutes, Rathbun said.

Although shelter managers have been trained for some buildings in many cases natural leaders would have direct activities and deal with incidents arising in isolated conditions, he said.

Instructions are included with all the supplies, so that few questions of procedure would complicate things.

One problem would undoubtedly be traffic control, Rathbun noted.

Most of the shelters are close to the center of town, and some wards within the city of Appleton (3rd, 6th, 19th).

Unless people walk, hard in a panic situation, a downtown traffic snarl results.

At the end of August, Rathbun said a drill for such an emergency will take place.

It will involve only the officials and emergency personnel, to acquaint them with the system.

The last such drill was held two years ago, although Rathbun said he would like to have one at least every quarter.

Two practice drills will be held before the final exercise— the first to acquaint the Emergency Government Subcommittee of the Outagamie County Executive Committee with procedures, and the second to inform officials, or their representatives of their responsibilities.

If they remember what happened last time it shouldn't be much of a shock," Rathbun said.

Civil defense programs began after World War II, Rathbun said.

A center has been in Outagamie County since 1954.

The federal Civil Defense program has been concerned primarily with fallout shelters, while the state and county programs consider emergency government.

The State Division of Emergency Government heads six areas in the state, including the Eastern Central Region of which the Outagamie County Emergency Government is part.

Within the local center five radio communications booths are set up.

The first communicates with the Eastern Central area headquarters in Fond du Lac, to which Outagamie County is responsible for itself.

Wausara and Calumet counties.

Other booths are for police, fire engineering (for debris removal) and the Civil Air Patrol.

The latter is valuable, Rathbun said, for its vast communications network and ability to provide rapid transportation.

Within the center everything works on a written message system to avoid misinterpretation of a voice instructions.

Incoming messages go to a message controller who writes it down and delivers it to the proper destination.

Although the county is prepared for an emergency it is still advisable for people to build their own fallout shelters in a new home it's relatively easy to add fallout facilities, Rathbun said.

In rural areas distance makes private shelters more convenient.

If you're building a home or a business this year, fight inflation with a modern AMOCO® furnace. Heating with electricity costs over three times more than with an AMOCO oil-fired furnace. For example, you could save $298.00 a year by heating with AMERICAN® Brand Heating Oil—over 20 years that's a savings of $5,960.00!

There is an AMOCO Sta-Warm furnace or boiler to fit your individual need, for home or plant. They are the newest in design.

Hearing Tests Set for Neenah And Appleton

Free electronic hearing tests will be given in NEENAH on Wednesday, July 15th and in APPLETON every Friday 9 A.M. to 12 Noon and every Wednesday 6 P.M. to 9 P.M.

Mr. Billingsley

Diagrams showing how the ear works and some of the causes of hearing loss will be available.

Visitors can also get information on how simple operations on the ear have helped thousands of people to hear again and how the latest electronic developments are helping thousands more.

Everyone should have a hearing test at least once a year if there is any trouble at all hearing clearly. Even people now wearing a hearing aid or those who have been told nothing could be done for them should have a hearing test and find out about the latest methods of hearing correction.

The free hearing tests will be held from 10 A.M. through 1 P.M. on Wednesday, July 15th at Morton's Drug Store in Neenah and from 9 A.M. to 12 Noon every Friday, and 6 P.M. to 9 P.M. every Wednesday at the Bellone Office at 206 N. Union St. in Appleton.

Batteries and service available for all makes of hearing aids.

Economy Should Grow On Post-War Babies

BY SYLVIA PORTER

The gentleman, a top U.S. business executive and a lifetime Republican, was my dinner partner, and I'm sure our hostess had expected we'd have a fine time talking to each other. But, ugh! As soon as we sat down, he started his chilling monologue . . . Inflation would gallop throughout the decade, impending wage settlements would slash corporation profits, interest rates had to move higher, he wouldn't touch the stock market . . . Finally, I'd had enough.

"What has happened to the unanimously brilliant projections for the 1970s?" I demanded. "Have all the economists' forecasts gone down the drain in just 18 months of this administration?"

Porter

He dismissed my questions with a shrug, but they kept nagging me for an answer — so here goes.

The brilliant projections are

Nixon Isolated From Foreign Trade Policies

Firing of Commerce Assistant Followed Speaking Out Against White House Protocol

BY ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — After he had been fired as Assistant Secretary of Commerce in a confrontation with presidential policy chief John Ehrlichman at the White House June 19, Kenneth Davis delivered some chilling words that capsuled what many people are thinking in Washington these days.

"I have no hard feelings, John," Davis told Ehrlichman. "I wish you luck. You're going to need it. You're in trouble, John — worse trouble than you know — and I'm worried about the country more than I was before I came down here."

government official most closely shaping that policy was Dr. Henry Kissinger, the President's chief foreign policy adviser as head of the National Security Council's staff.

Davis felt that Kissinger, in making trade recommendations to the President, was preoccupied by foreign policy considerations and uninterested in the problems of American business.

What was worse, he couldn't get in touch with Kissinger. Telephone call after telephone call from Davis to Kissinger went unanswered.

Nor could Davis go over Kissinger's head. He saw almost nothing of Mr. Nixon himself after the administration's earliest days. He came to feel that powerful aides around the President led by Ehrlichman constituted a closed circle of veterans of the 1968 presidential campaign. Never active politically, businessman Davis felt closed out by the White House.

The outspoken Davis's words had a double edge. On one level, the Nixon administration has badly underestimated the depth of protectionist sentiment both in the business community and congress. The upshot is that President Nixon is losing control of the legislative situation on trade this year and next.

Attacks Trade Policy

In the end, Davis found his only entry to the presidential decision-making process was at a very low and faceless level: Fred Bergsten, a foreign service officer assigned to Kissinger's NSC staff. While interdepartmental meetings on trade at the subcommittee level droned on purposelessly, Bergsten quietly took notes in the corner in preparing a memorandum that would influence trade policy.

Deep Implications

But beyond the severe problems of foreign trade, Davis's warning carried deeper implications: the Nixon administration is in trouble because of a chaotic decision-making apparatus. The Davis affair is another piece of evidence that Mr. Nixon is isolated from the advice of his own appointees while decision-making takes an erratic course. For that reason, Davis's unhappy experience in Washington is worth examining in some detail.

Thanks to the dominance of foreign policy considerations, Davis came to feel, correctly, that President Nixon sought to preserve the free-trade status quo, save for textile quotas to satisfy the 1968 campaign commitment to Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina. That decision, Davis felt, ignored both economic and congressional realities.

Ken Davis, a 44-year-old boy wonder at International Business Machines (IBM), arrived in Washington at the beginning of the Nixon administration as one of the brightest members recruited for the subcommittee. IBM's treasurer and chief financial officer since age 37, Davis approached his job as the commerce department's foreign trade specialist as a moderate Republican and with a general predilection for free trade.

That changed as he immersed himself in the subject — a transformation simultaneously coming over other erstwhile free-traders such as Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. Like Mills, Davis became convinced that the International trade rules are stacked against the U.S. that the Japanese are pursuing a course of economic imperialism, and that vital U.S. interests are being threatened.

Frustrated by his inability to get his message to the President, Davis made his public attack on administration trade policy which led to his sacking by Ehrlichman June 19 on presidential orders. Unlike Dr. James Allen, who was fired as Assistant Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare shortly before that for gross disloyalty, Davis was a loyal Nixon man who became insubordinate only out of despair. His story, then, is something for the White House to ponder.

Two Die in Downpour In Northern Greece

SALONIKA, Greece. (AP) — Floods caused by torrential rains hit northern Greece for the second time Friday night and early today, killing two persons and injuring three others. Hundreds of homes were inundated in the northern Greek capital of Salonika.

Three persons were reported missing and feared drowned, police said.

The rain disrupted telephone communications and power distribution. A number of bridges were destroyed. Livestock losses were heavy.

Police said the Istanbul-Salonika rail line was cut by the flood.

as valid as ever, if you make just three basic assumptions:

Military Costs to Continue

A first assumption is that we'll muddle through this Indochina nightmare and enter an era of social upheaval at home terror. This means our military spending will remain very high, but it does imply some easing of today's pressures on manpower and money.

A second assumption is that we also will muddle through this era of social upheaval at home without blowing ourselves up.

And a third is that we will have the economic power and knowhow both to maintain the long-term upward trend of our nation — and to curb the frequency, depth and duration of recessions.

If I am to have any confidence in our future at all, I must make these assumptions and, thus, I comfort myself with the belief that they are reasonable assessments.

Once you have done that, the fundamental point which emerges is that the U.S. need do no more than extend trends already apparent to assure a growth rate in the 1970s which will surpass the record of the entire 20th century to date.

The rate of "real" growth in our output of goods and services (Gross National Product) has been roughly 3 per cent a year in the 20th century and roughly 3.3 per cent a year in recent history. "Real" means that the contribution of price increases to the dollar totals has been

Louis Armstrong Honored During Jazz Festival

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The rain came from the sky Friday night, but the thunder came from the 3,000-member audience when "Satchmo" took the stage.

The opening of the 17th annual Newport Jazz Festival was dedicated to Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong, who turned 70 on the 4th of July and was down to a trim 130 pounds from the 200 he sported for years.

Some of New Orleans' greats were there with him. They played the many forms of music that made up the atmosphere out of which Armstrong developed.

Mahalia Jackson, Dizzy Gillespie and Bobby Hackett had special words for "The Satch." Then Armstrong took the stage with Miss Jackson, joining her in a New Orleans gospel favorite, "Just a Closer Walk With Thee."

That's when the heavy rains came, bringing the festival to a hasty conclusion.

Armstrong's only comment was: "What a wonderful wonderful evening."

Philippine Rebels Fight Police in Gun Battle

MANILA, (AP) — Philippine police said Hukbong forces of the national police force about 30 miles south of Manila today.

One soldier was killed during the encounter with the heavily armed antigovernment rebels, the constabulary said. It was not known whether the rebels suffered any losses.

The clash, described by Philippine News Service as a "fierce gun battle," took place near the town of Alfonso, Cavite.

eliminated.

Now heed these impressive projections:

Bank Forecasts Good

The Chase National Bank of New York foresees real growth at 4 per cent a year in this decade. The Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York puts the rate at 4.3 per cent. The National Industrial Conference Board puts it at 4.3 to 4.5 per cent. All see us already well into the decade of the trillions — and these are just random projections I picked out of a fat file.

Why? A basic force is, simply those post-World War II babies — and you can't phony-up that trend! Those babies were born long ago; they are.

In this decade, they will be moving in vast numbers out of their years as dependent teenagers and into labor force as independent young adults. Because of their sheer numbers alone, our work force growth is projected at around 1.8 per cent a year against 1.5 per cent in the past couple of decades.

Putting it another way, the 20-29 age group will soar 15 million in the 1970s as against a meagre 2 million increase in the 1960s.

This will be an unusually poorer, less educated workers group of young adults (I know, my basic optimism shines through).

At the same time, their productivity will be enhanced by the hundreds of billions of dollars we've invested in recent years in research and development, new plants and equipment.

At the same time, too, our special training programs begun in the 1960s and from a revamping of our welfare programs, which will be designed to pull the sub-marginal citizen into the productive work force.

This decade is getting off to a very slow start. But so did the 1960s — and I might remind you that, despite that botched-up beginning, every optimistic forecast made in 1960 for 1970 had been topped by 1965. . . .

Young Hobby Club Ball-Rolling Contest Can Be Fun on Rainy Days

BY CAPPY DICK
The game described as today's fun-project is not only easy to make out of materials

Easy to Make around the house, but is fun to play indoors on rainy days. The only things needed are a fairly long corrugated carton and a ball. The ball may be a tennis ball, a hard or soft rubber ball, a baseball or even a table tennis ball. Cut the carton in half lengthwise as shown by the dotted line in figure 1. Cut seven holes in the carton (figure 2), making each one big enough for the ball to fall through. With a felt-tipped marking pen or crayons, print a point value beneath each hole, using the values shown in figure 2. Place the triangular box against the wall as in figure 3. The gap between the carton and the wall will serve as a trap for the ball if it overshoots the target. To play the game stand 10 feet from the box and roll the ball, aiming for the holes. You win the point value of any hole it drops through. If the ball overshoots the target and lands between the box and the wall, you must forfeit five points. The players take turns rolling the ball. The one who is first to earn a total of 250 points wins the game.

New Controls on Defense Research Funding Favored

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee will recommend tight new controls on the way the Pentagon pays defense contractors traveling the financially risky road of research, sources say.

These sources, close to the committee's work, calculate the changes could mean a $100 million cut in funds for private industry research, which last year cost at least $759 million for running IR&D, B&P and OTE.

Those aren't railroads. The initials stand for Independent Research and Development, Bid and Proposal and Other Technical Effort—the three categories of the Pentagon's program covering reimbursement for private technical-effort expenses.

Future Security
Although no one knows for certain where the road leads until it gets somewhere, research contractors contend derailing of the IR&D, B&P and OTE would be a disaster for them and for the future security of the nation.

This once-obscure system for carrying researchers on otherwise financially impossible trips into unknown realms has become a source of increasing concern among economy-hunters.

Following lengthy hearings by a Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., the Armed Services Committee has prepared proposals for new controls aimed at improving the research program.

Own Initiative
The program pays the expenses of a company undertaking research largely at its own initiative rather than under terms of direct contracts with the Defense Department.

The committee will recommend the Pentagon negotiate advance agreements with all contractors who receive more than $2 million in IR&D, B&P and OTE payments during the previous fiscal year.

There would be no major boost in the number of individual negotiations because the number of contractors covered under the new provision would be about 50—roughly as many as under current advance agreements.

The new arrangements would cover all three categories—not just IR&D, which Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., calls "a back door boondoggle."

Subvert Ceilings
"The Defense Department itself has acknowledged," the committee will say, "that an expanded ceiling of this kind is needed if a solution is to be found to the present practice whereby companies subvert their IR&D ceilings by classifying certain expenditures in the B&P and OTE accounts."

B&P expenditures are incurred in preparing bids on or proposals for new weapons systems or components to the Pentagon.

The difference between B&P and IR&D is in the purpose for which the work is done. B&P involves specific proposals, while IR&D has a more general aim of developing processes, products or service capabilities.

OTE covers a group of miscellaneous technical activities—a hybrid grouping which has grown as an accounting convenience.

Proposed Programs
The committee also will call for a requirement that IR&D portions of such advance agreements be accompanied by technical evaluations of contractors' proposed programs along these lines.

"These evaluations must be improved," the committee says, "if the department is to be assured that the work done is of great potential value to its future needs."

The committee's proposed law also would require payments

Rocks Similar To Moon's Being Sought

Scientist Puzzled By Growth of Plants In Lunar Soil

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 120 pounds of lunar samples brought back by the Apollo 11 and 12 moon missions have touched off a search for similar materials on earth, according to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

As the space agency has said before, the samples indicate no life exists on the moon, but scientists still are trying to determine why some plants grow better in lunar soil than in earth dirt, NASA said.

In a news release in anticipation of the July 20 anniversary of the first manned landing on the moon a year ago, NASA said:

"Although the gross chemical properties of the moon rocks resemble terrestrial volcanic rocks in some respects, the lunar rocks have some highly significant differences such as an unusually high titanium content, an unusual distribution of rare earth elements, and low water content.

Earth Search
"The unusual properties have spurred on geologists here on earth to find similar materials.

"Already closer equivalents of lunar volcanic rocks are being reported from Idaho, Sweden, Brazil, and the mid-Atlantic Ridge."

More than 150 scientific groups in the United States and abroad are taking part in detailed analysis of the fine-grained lunar dust and the moon rocks. In many respects the lunar material is similar to lava flows of Hawaii and other areas.

"While there is ample evidence of high-speed impacts by meteorite particles on the moon, there do not appear to be major, recent upheavals generated by the moon itself," the agency added.

Exposure Time
"Exposure age determinations on lunar rocks indicate that they have lain within a few feet of the lunar surface for 200 to 500 millions of years.

"The effects of the meteorite impacts seem to be in the nature of a stirring action, or 'gardening,' of the lunar top soil."

The lunar rocks, and aluminum foil exposed to the sun by the astronauts, also have shown evidence of effects of bombardment by solar wind greatly in excess of predicted values, NASA said.

This has led one scientist to state that the proper way to study the sun is through samples collected from the moon. It added.

Laboratory studies have shown no ill effects of moon dust on earthly plants or animals, nor any sign of lunar life. But "one effect not yet understood is the apparent high-nutrient value of lunar soil."

"The growth of liverworts and similar plants in lunar material Age and the tight money market have held down the rush by plants in earth material."

Freed Bishop Recuperating

Walsh May Visit Pope

HONG KONG (AP) — American Bishop James E. Walsh, freed by Communist China three days ago after 12 years in prison, may be flown to Rome for a meeting with Pope Paul VI when the doctors decide he is fit to travel.

The plan to speed the 79-year-old Roman Catholic cleric to the Vatican was announced today by the Rev. John McCormack, superior general of the Maryknoll Order, of which Bishop Walsh is a member. Arriving from New York, he said the plan was his own and indicated he had not discussed it with the Vatican.

A hospital bulletin reported the bishop was "slightly stronger" after sleeping almost the entire night.

Earlier he had been showing signs of an adverse reaction to the excitement of his release. After a light breakfast, the bulletin said, routine X rays were made of his chest and back. No tests or treatments were planned for today, the report said, indicating the emphasis is on quiet and rest.

Pope Paul meanwhile sent a cable to Bishop Walsh congratulating him on his release. The pontiff told him: "With great joy we have received the news of your liberation. Assuring you of our constant prayer, we send you our warmest greetings in Christ Jesus and impart to you with deep affection our special apostolic blessing."

Good News
In his weekly Sunday address to the noontime crowd in St. Peter's Square, the Pope said the release of Bishop Walsh was "good news which awakens the memory for other persons and countries where legitimate freedom is impeded." He expressed hope that Peking's unexpected release of the bishop might be a sign of "better days for the religious freedom in that country."

Bishop Walsh talked by telephone Sunday with his brother and four sisters in Cumberland, Md., and told them their prayers and letters sustained him through his 12 years of captivity.

"I am very happy to be breathing free air again," he told them. "Everyone is being so wonderful to me."

"Jim's voice was so firm and clear," said one sister, Mrs. Frank Werner.

Congress Moving to Retain VA Home Loan Guarantees

WASHINGTON (AP) — The War II, Korea, post-Korea deadline for World War II GI loans and Vietnam may get home to apply for Veterans Administration home loan guarantees guaranteed up to $12,500, but expires July 25 but Congress is moving to save and perhaps expand the program.

Under bills being considered, Congress may reopen the program to millions who passed it up by knocking out the eligibility deadline for veterans of World War II as well as GIs who served in Korea, the post-Korea era and Vietnam.

Several such bills have been introduced and the Senate has held hearings on one sponsored by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and backed by the White House.

Now Eligible
The Senate bill, as it seems to be shaping up, would knock out all deadlines—present and future—on GI home loans. Several bills are in the House Veterans Affairs Committee, which will hold hearings this week, including one by Chairman Olin E. Teague, D-Tex., to knock out the deadline only for those now still eligible.
